HORSE OWNER FINED FOR ALLEGED CRUELTY

Drove Unfit Animal From Andover to Lowell—Saturday Night Assaultant Sent to Worcester

Driving a horse, whose age was roughly estimated at 25 years, and which was terribly lame, all the way from Andover, William J. Tishart found himself in the clutches of the law when he drove the hobbling equine up to a local auction room last Thursday afternoon.

Tishart was charged with cruelty to a horse. Charles S. Clark, an agent of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was the first witness produced by the government at the defendant's trial in police court this morning.

Mr. Clark testified that he saw the defendant drive a very lame horse

MISSING TEACHER FOUND

Miss Piper Arrives in Portland From Boston—Meets Father—Claims She Was Drugged

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 25.—Miss Lois Piper, the missing young school teacher and daughter of Kingsbury B. Piper of Fairfield, secretary of the democratic state committee, arrived here on the steamer from Boston today. She told the police she was drugged at Waterville last Monday night and taken to Boston, where she was confined until last night.

Miss Piper's story was substantially as follows: She met two pleasant appearing men at a moving picture show at Waterville and started to ride with them in an automobile. She remembered that she ate some candy, which she now believes was drugged and dimly recalled having been in Portland.

While in Boston she was held in restraint in a room. Yesterday she overheard some one in an adjoining room say: "It is getting too hot for us." Then she was told by her keepers, whom she did not describe, that she would be liberated upon three conditions. These were that she should go to the North station on a car and walk to the Portland steamer at Rowe's wharf, give a fictitious name when she registered and remain in a stateroom until Portland was reached.

She complied with all three injunctions and left the steamer early this forenoon.

A policeman who was asked to direct her to Union station inquired her name and upon learning she was the much-sought young teacher, took her to the police station. Mr. Piper, who by a coincidence came from Boston by train last night to investigate certain clues, was notified and joined his daughter.

HAVERHILL STRIKE OFF LIPS BADLY CRUSHED

COAL TEAMSTERS RETURNED TO WORK PENDING DECISION OF STATE BOARD OF ARBITRATION

HAVERHILL, Nov. 25.—The coal teamsters' strike involving 30 men was declared off this morning after scarcely more than 24 hours' duration, the strikers voting at their union meeting this morning to join with the coal dealers in submitting all differences to the state board of arbitration. The men returned to work this noon under the conditions of the old agreement to force prior to November 1.

Miss Jessie W. Wilson Marries Francis B. Sayre This Afternoon

GROOM, BRIDE AND BEST MAN IN TODAY'S WHITE HOUSE WEDDING AND ROOM WHERE IT OCCURRED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, second daughter of the president of the United States, and Francis Bowes Sayre, a social worker and philanthropist, will be married in the East room of the White House at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon by the Rev. Sylvester W. Beach of Princeton, N. J. The simple, impressive marriage service of the Presbyterian church will unite the young couple. The ceremony will be witnessed by a company of the most distinguished men and women of the land.

INDIAN SUMMER WEATHER ushered in the wedding DAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Indian summer weather ushered in the wedding day of Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson and Francis B. Sayre. Carriages began early drawing up to the White House portico and there was a distinct touch of holiday atmosphere everywhere. In the interior of the White House, a floral tower in itself, everything was quiet and in readiness for the ceremony at 4:30 o'clock. At the executive offices some of the wedding guests came early to pay their respects to President Wilson. Colonel E. M. House of New York, an intimate

MANY OBJECT TO THE HOSPITAL SITE

Pawtucketville People do Not Want Contagious Hospital in Seventh Avenue

There are people in Pawtucketville who do not want a hospital in that section of the city. That fact was brought out at a meeting of the municipal council held this forenoon, when Mayor O'Donnell read a petition, bearing a list of signatures, and objecting to the site in Seventh avenue as recommended by the state board of health. Alderman Cummings, however, stated that he had heard there were people in Pawtucketville who would like to have a hospital located there. On motion of Mr. Cummings it was voted to have a public hearing on the matter next Tuesday evening.

The Meeting
Mayor O'Donnell called to order at 11.15 with all members present except Alderman Barrett, who came in a little later. The first business before the meeting had to do with a pole location in Nineteenth street as petitioned for by the Lowell Electric Light Corp. The petitioners wanted the pole location to supply light to a house owned by Miss Alice Gillman. The latter appeared at a previous hearing and asked that the location be granted. Today Miss Gillman was represented by Senator Edward Fisher, but inasmuch as the order for the location had been favorable.

MAYOR ANSWERS PASTOR

Replies to Questions as to Why Nation, State and City Should Celebrate Thanksgiving Day

"What reasons, if any, have the nation and our state for celebrating Thanksgiving Day this year?"
"What reason, if any, has Lowell for celebrating Thanksgiving Day this year?"
"Have you personally any reason for gratitude that you care to mention?"
The above questions were contained in a letter addressed to Mayor James E. O'Donnell by Rev. C. A. Lincoln, pastor of the Kirk Street church, Mr. Lincoln having addressed similar questions to other prominent men throughout the city for the purpose, perhaps of assisting him in preparing a Thanksgiving sermon.

The mayor's answers to Mr. Lincoln's questions were as follows:

Rev. C. A. Lincoln,
Kirk Street Church, Lowell.

Dear Sir:
I am glad of the opportunity afforded me by your letter to give my views as to the very positive reasons for national, civic and personal thanksgiving next Thursday. Following the classification as outlined by you, I would say:

The nation and the state have strong reasons for thanksgiving because—

1. America is at peace with the great nations of the earth, and our national leaders are actuated with a fine idealism for all that concerns the uplift of mankind.
2. Domestic and foreign trade is unusually prosperous; all crops have been abundant, and far reaching legislative measures have been enacted without disturbing the industrial balance.
3. There is splendid humanitarian spirit evidenced throughout the entire country, and the law seems to be actuated by a desire to benefit the many instead of the privileged few.
4. The masses of our people are religious and law abiding, and are not torn by the social dissensions that keep other countries in unrest.

Lowell has reason to celebrate Thanksgiving because:

1. Its mills and factories are running and its people prosperous and contented.
2. It has not been visited by any great natural or industrial calamity such as a business-paralyzing strike or great conflagration for the past year.
3. It promises to become still more "the city of opportunity" and there is a growing spirit of civic pride among its people.

Personally I have many reasons for gratitude of which the following are a few:

1. I enjoy the blessings of health, peace of mind, and warm friendships.
2. It has been my privilege to serve my native city and all its people.
3. Thousands have recently expressed their confidence in me and openly rebuked those who wronged me by unjust criticism.

I remain, dear sir,
James E. O'Donnell.

SANGUINARY FIGHTING CONTINUES IN MEXICO

Federals and Rebels are in Desperate Battle Near Juarez—Americansforcibly Ejected From City

EAGLE PASS, Texas, Nov. 25.—A battle between Mexican federals and rebels at Las Vegas, Mexico, opposite Del Rio, Texas, was reported as in progress today. It was said each side had 400 men engaged.

Firing opened at 4:30 this morning southeast of the Juarez race track and also opposite Yuleta, Texas, about 10 miles east of Juarez. The federals used cannon in both attacks. The appearance of the federals near the race track indicated they had worked their way around the rebel outposts during the night.

The heavy fighting at Zaragoza, opposite Yuleta, was taken to contradict the statement that General Salazar's federal troops had been surrounded and virtually made prisoners during last night. This statement had been made by Juan Medina, chief of General Villa's staff. Early today reports from Yuleta were that the fighting was heavy, the roar of the cannon being plainly audible. These reports were that Villa had taken four wagonloads of supplies and ammunition across the border at Socorro during the night, with a considerable supply of forage for his cavalry.

The sound of battle south of Juarez was heard here early but the fighting was not close enough for any missiles to fall into Juarez or El Paso.

MISS KELLER'S LECTURE

MISS HELEN KELLER

Mrs. Macy and Her Marvelous Pupil Heard by Large Audience Under Auspices of Women's Club

Miss Helen Keller, the deaf and blind girl whose fame is nation-wide, and Mrs. Annie Sullivan Macy, her teacher, lectured at the First Universalist church last evening, the event being arranged under the auspices of the Middlesex Women's Club. The affair was open to the public and the attendance was very large. Miss Keller's life has been a wonderful one, especially in her education and training, since she has, with the aid of her teacher and others, accomplished feats of intellect and learning that have heretofore appeared impossible to one without the use of sight and hearing.

Mrs. Macy was first introduced by Miss Ward, president of the club, and she gave a highly interesting account of the education of Miss Keller, who was utterly blind and deaf from the age of 19 months. Her father had written to the Boston Institution for the Blind to secure a teacher for his daughter, having heard of the wonderful progress of Laura Bridgman, whom Dr. Howe had taught 40 years before the birth of Miss Keller. Mrs. Macy said that she herself had been almost totally blind until she was 18 years of age when an operation restored her sight, though in an imperfect manner. Mrs. Macy said that she understood the language of the deaf and blind, and had lived in the house with Laura Bridgman. Consequently she became Miss Keller's teacher.

When she first met the girl, the latter had a number of signals by which she conveyed her wants. Mrs. Macy began by teaching her to spell a few words on her fingers, beginning with "doll," but finding that she had confused much with water, the teacher one day allowed water to flow over the blind girl's hands and then spelling out the word "water" for her, she showed the pupil that everything had a name. Helen had an odd manner of expression, due perhaps, to the manner in which she learned her words. After a great many anecdotes of Helen's early steps toward education, Mrs. Macy said that Miss Keller learned so rapidly that it was a question whether the teacher led the pupil or the pupil drove the teacher, and that she had to educate herself in order to keep up with her. For the first three years, Miss Keller spelled on her fingers, and then insisted upon learning to speak, having found that others moved their lips when in conversation with her. By learning to read the lips blind girl finally became able to speak to her friends. This is one of the most marvelous accomplishments of any age. Mr. Charles White, a teacher in the New England Conservatory of Music, became interested in her and developed her voice so that she could speak to a large number of people.

Miss Keller insisted on going to college and although her course was most satisfactory in every way, nevertheless, Mrs. Macy said that she missed the real factor, the college life. It was Radcliffe college that Miss Keller attended and her studies were made by the teacher communicating to her by the touch method and by writing. Miss Keller used a typewriter, but occasionally when the ribbon slips or the letters do not show up, she has to do the work of hours all over again, but this she does patiently.

Mrs. Macy proved a very interesting speaker and in the course of her talk she voiced some of the great principles of education as being illustrated in the marvelous development of this girl's mind under such great difficulties.

Miss Keller was loudly applauded as she was led before the audience, and as the expression of her face undeniably indicated she felt the applause. She spoke briefly and simply as follows:

"Dear friends," she said, "I am glad to stand before you and hold out my hands to you in love and fellowship. I do not know how you look, and the sound of your voices is shut from me; but I feel your love and kindness. It surrounds and upholds me and makes me happy. What I have to say to you is very simple, very plain. We are all bound together; we live for each other and by each other. Our success in life depends upon mutual helpfulness. Do not tell me that what my teacher and I have done gives them confidence in their abilities, and makes them wish to use their minds more fully. If others are helped, we are glad, we rejoice in the obstacles that we have overcome. I was blind, now I see; I was deaf, now I hear; I was dumb, now I speak. It was through the hand of others that I found myself, found my mother and father, found the world, found my soul, and love, and life. Without my teacher I should be nothing; without you I should be nothing. We live by each other, life for each other is the only life worth living. Alone we can do so little; with others we can do so much. I long to extend my hands to you, and to give back a hundred fold all of the happiness and the love that have been poured into them."

Of course it was not to be expected that Miss Keller's voice would sound natural. Those close to her understood more of her words than those at the back of the hall, yet the latter understood many of her words. After leaving her for a few times, a person might understand her very well. Her voice has a guttural sound and the articulation is rather vague, but in spite of these drawbacks she talks, and what she says is good.

Then Mrs. Macy demonstrated her method of conversation with Miss Keller, the latter reading her teacher's lips with her fingers, and responding to the questions which she asked. A person in the audience inquired whether or not Miss Keller translated what she read into the English language. She replied that she thinks it spoken words, but that is only since she has learned to speak.

On being asked to recite some familiar piece, she chose the 23rd psalm and recited it with a reverence and expression that was wonderful.

Her lecture was a thorough success in every way, and highly interesting and instructive to the large audience which listened to Miss Keller and Mrs. Macy, her talented and equally famous teacher.

CRY FOR TEACHER

Pupils and Others Honor Miss Stoddard Who Ended Her Life

BROCKTON, Nov. 25.—The body of Miss Carrie E. Stoddard, the 23-year-old school teacher of the sixth grade in the public schools of this city, who committed suicide some time last Friday night by inhaling gas in her room at 25 Ellsworth avenue, was buried this afternoon at the home of her parents in Norwell.

The mystery covering the purpose that prompted her to take her life remains unsolved.

Scores of fellow teachers, mingling in mournful step with more than 200 citizens of the city, viewed the body of the young school teacher.

Every one of Miss Stoddard's pupils, the boys with set, stern, grief-furrowed faces, and the girls with faces bathed in tears, telling of their love for their departed teacher, passed solemnly by the casket, stopping but a moment for a farewell glance and to lay in quiet affection a floral tribute to their regard and esteem. The softly weeping children with their manifold clusters of flowers heightened the sombre, sorrowing aspect of the scene.

WHITE HOUSE WEDDING

friend, Cleveland H. Dodge, a Princeton classmate of the president, and John A. Wilson, a cousin of the president, were among the first to arrive. The president had but one business engagement, a cabinet meeting.

Some of the bridal party stopping at the White House were entertained at luncheon by Associate Justice Lamar of the Supreme court and Mrs. Lamar. It was the last of the series of pre-nuptial functions.

The president and Mrs. Wilson had some of their relatives and friends at luncheon.

Mrs. Wilson Meets Guests

Mrs. Wilson visited the executive offices with guests, showed them the president's office and the cabinet rooms, walked through the south grounds, Princeton university, Andrew Imbrie, Edward Howe, Professor Osgood and Parrott and a score of long time residents of Princeton were early callers. Mr. Sayre and his best man, Dr. Grenfell, took a long walk in the morning and were at the White House for luncheon.

Miss Mary Tumulty, the nine year old daughter of Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick Tumulty, was to be the youngest guest at the wedding. None of the cabinet children had been invited.

It became known this afternoon that the wedded couple will spend the greater part of their honeymoon abroad. It is thought they will sail within a week, though the time of the departure and destination is being kept secret.

SIMPLICITY AND DIGNITY PRE- DOMINANT NOTE IN WHITE HOUSE ARRANGEMENTS

WASHINGTON, November 25.—Simplicity with dignity—the same ideal which President Wilson has cherished for his administration since its inauguration—was the predominant note in the arrangements for the marriage late today of Jessie Woodrow Wilson, second daughter of President and Mrs. Wilson, and Francis Bowes Sayre.

During the 113 years that have elapsed since the White House was built, twelve weddings have taken place there and it falls to the lot of Miss Wilson to be the thirteenth, a coincidence all the more remarkable because the president often has told his friends that the number thirteen has run through his life as a harbinger of good luck. Curiously enough the bride and minister number just thirteen.

The ceremony was to be solemnized in the historic East Room, majestically decorated in masses of flower for the occasion, at 4.30 o'clock this afternoon, but long before that hour the White House grounds assumed a holiday appearance. The passing of automobiles and carriages to and from the north portico told the gathering crowds outdoors that the bridal party—the ushers and attendant maids—had arrived and that all was in readiness for the unusual event—the giving in marriage of a daughter of the president of the United States.

Notwithstanding its official brilliancy, there was a distinctive touch of homeliness in the day's affair. The Rev. Sylvester W. Beach, pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Falmouth, N. J., where Miss Wilson long taught a Sunday bible class and where the Wilson family worshipped for a score of years, had been selected as the officiating clergyman. The maid of honor was the eldest daughter of the president, Miss Margaret Wilson. The bridesmaids were the bride's cousins, Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, and Miss Mary G. White of Baltimore; Miss Adeline Mitchell Scott of Princeton, and Miss Marjorie Brown, of Atlanta, the last a relative, and the others chums of girlhood days.

Dr. Grenfell Best Man

The best man was Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, with whom Sayre spent many months ministering to the sick and needy on the rock-bound Labrador coast. The ushers were the groom's college mates—Benjamin B. Burton, of New York; Dr. Lewis D. Scoville, of Salem, Mass.; Dr. Gilbert Horvax, of Montclair, N. J., and Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., a son of the justice of the supreme court.

The bride and groom—both blonde and of about the same height, she known as the White House beauty because of her hair—were featured and he, a tall, lithe young man athletic in appearance with sharp features and a fair complexion—were busily occupied during the forepart of the day mingling in the bridal party, their relatives and house guests to whom alone the White House was accessible before the wedding hour.

The two young people who have lived the hardships of the poverty settlements in big cities and who have acquired into life's social and economic problems first hand, would have preferred a quiet wedding, limited to the family circle and close friends—such as it might have been had not the parents of the bride been elevated to the foremost social position in the gift of the nation. Reluctantly it was made an official affair. The diplomatic corps, it was realized had never been omitted cause of her important position at the White House, nor had the members of the cabinet and the supreme court. To Washington society today's was the supreme event of the season, yet the guests were hardly drawn from official life but from the vast circle of friends of the two families throughout the land.

400 Invitations

There were but four hundred invitations issued—600 less than at the Roosevelt wedding seven years ago—but the Wilsons are newcomers in Washington, whereas the Roosevelt administration was then five years old and officials and their wives had had a greater opportunity to establish intimate relations at the White House.

Members of the cabinet and their wives and families, as well as the justices of the supreme court of the United States and their families, the ambassadors and ministers representing kings and emperors throughout the civilized world, the Vice-President and Mrs. Marshall, the speaker of the house and Mrs. Champ Clark, Senator Kern and his wife, Senator Oscar Underwood, the democratic leaders, and Senator Gallinger and Representative Mann, the majority leaders of congress, and their wives—these were the persons invited because of their official position, though among them were many close friends of the Wilson family.

Senators and members of the house primarily were not invited. If they had been, the East Room could not have held them. It was the same arrangement as was carried out at the Roosevelt wedding, in fact the preparations, decorations and general scheme of the day's program were along somewhat the same general lines.

As at the Roosevelt wedding, the diplomatic corps decided not to appear in uniform, but none the less it was expected that the assemblage would be the brilliant one. Though the ceremony was to be an unconventional afternoon frolic, for weeks that have preceded the wedding and toilettes have been planned with minute care by the fem-

The program had been mapped out to the final detail, the White House attaches living each part of it with the exactness characteristic of functions at the executive mansion.

High Officials Present

High officials and relatives were to enter at the north front, but the guests generally were to come in at the last entrance through the glass conservatory decorated with ferns and palms and revealing through big windows the south grounds with the fountain and Italian pools, the hedges and shrubbery—the exquisite gardening of years. From the conservatory to the main staircase leading up to the East Room where, daily, hundreds of tourists are permitted to promenade, where the busts of celebrities and tea chests and relics of traditional history are gathered—here was a staff of ushers to assist the guests with their wraps.

The East Room as it was prepared for the wedding was a picture of grandeur. Three crystal chandeliers with their pseudo-candle lights were to be but half-illuminated.

spreading a dim but suffused light over the gold trimmed walls with their cream colored plaster, their huge vases and mantels of colored marble. The walls of the East Room are covered with wood paneling, the ornamental ceiling is done in stucco and set in the walls are twelve low relief panels, their subjects from the fables of the window draperies of heavy yellow silk damask were hung loose today and the shades drawn at the east end of the room facing the treasury building there is a series of four windows, broken by piers. It was in front of these windows on a dais decked with flowers that the wedding ceremony was to be performed.

Beautiful Decorations

The windows were draped with a large lambrequin of old gold plush with curtains on either side. Wherever there was a loop or wherever the overhanging borders of the lambrequin joined, there were large ropes of emerald and bunches of lilies. In front of these windows a platform approached by two semi-circular steps had been erected. The platform itself was covered with a rug, and immediately above the steps was a kneeling bench upholstered in white cloth, tied with white satin ribbons and filled out with white roses and lilies. Behind this, with just enough space for the officiating clergyman to stand was a mass of palms and emerald with a great bunch of lilies.

Everybody was to stand on the glistening parquet floor, for there are no chairs in the East Room except on rare occasions, at musicales. The so-called official guests, including members of the cabinet, the vice-president and the speaker of the house and their families, the justices of the supreme court and the diplomatic corps and their ladies were to be grouped in the southern half of the room, while the guests generally were to stand in the northern half with the immediate families of the bride and groom in the aisle between, surrounding the dais after the bride party had reached the floral bower and improvised altar. Two ropes wound in white satin marked the green carpeted aisle.

Looking down the main aisle from the dais, the green carpet met the red rug of the long corridor which reflects the lower floor of the White House leading from the state dining room to the East Room and bordering the trio of parlors—the Red Room, the Blue Room and the Green Room. The United States Marine band grouped behind palms was to occupy a part of the great reception hall of marble floor and built-in pillars.

At exactly half past four o'clock, the President and Mrs. Wilson were to descend the main staircase from the family apartments, proceeding to the state dining room, where the bride procession was to be formed. Mrs. Wilson and the members of the two families were to be escorted through the parlors to the southern end of the East Room and finally to a place just east of the dais, Mr. Sayre and the best man were to come in from the Blue Room meeting the procession of bridesmaids and the bride at the foot of the dais.

Bridal Procession

From the western end of the long corridor at the state dining room, the bride procession was to form. In the niches of the corridor, palms and tropical plants had been placed. Each of the bridesmaids, escorted by one of the ushers, was to march slowly into the East room to the strains of the famous "Lohengrin" wedding march, played by the Marine band. Last the bride was to enter, leaning on the arm of the president, and preceded by the maid of honor. The bride was to carry a bouquet of lilies of the valley, while the bridesmaids wore the entire bride party was to stand, the president and Mrs. Wilson standing at the base of the platform.

The Rev. Mr. Beach was to read the wedding service from the Book of Common Prayer and immediately after the ceremony, the bride party was to proceed to the Blue Room to receive the guests, with the President and Mrs. Wilson standing with the bride and groom. Then the bride party was to enter the private dining room, where the table with its big cake was decorated with pink roses.

Refreshments for the guests were to be served in the state dining room. This room is lighted by silver chandeliers and 32 silver electric side-lights. It is furnished with chairs of mahogany, upholstered in dark green tapestry. Three large mahogany console tables with large carved eagles for supports were to be used for serving.

Reception After Wedding

The Blue room, the scene of the reception after the wedding, is historic for the many events that have taken place in it, chief among which was the wedding of President Cleveland. Except for decorations here and there, the room is little changed since then. There is a mantel of pure white marble in it, the shelf being supported by bundles of arrows carved in the white marble with bronze tips and feathers; the wainscoting is in white enamel, the wall covering is of heavy, corded blue silk, on which is embroidered at top and bottom the Grecian fret. The curtain hangings are of the same blue material as the wall coverings and embroidered with stars. The curtain poles are surmounted by gilt eagles and the Grecian fret appears also in the ceiling. The furniture is in white and gold, upholstered in blue and gold.

Blind doors have been cut in the walls near the southern end of the room and at reception guests pass through the three colored parlors.

Through the corridors hung with the pictures of presidents and their wives the wedding guests were to promenade after the reception while the Marine band rendered selections, and by 6 o'clock the bride and groom expected to be speeding away on their honeymoon. Whether they will go by automobile or train is a secret. They intend to travel for about a month, getting into their new home at Williamsstown, Mass., early in January. Washington society expects, however, to see them back for the New Year's reception at the White House, though the couple have not made known their plans to anyone except the members of the family circle.

Executive avenue between the White House and the treasury department was expected to be jammed with the carriages and automobiles of the guests, and it was here that it was expected that the greatest crowd would gather. Lines of police had been arranged for the occasion, being stationed along the east terraces and at the gates to move traffic smoothly.

WHITE HOUSE BRIDAL PARTY IS DEVOTED TO THE SAME IDEALS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Similar tastes, a devotion to the same ideals, and a desire to dedicate their lives to work of Christian usefulness and social service is the characteristic quality of Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, daughter of the president, and Francis Bowes Sayre, who today are to be married at the White House.

Both have won laurels at college for their studies in political economy and sociological subjects, and each has worked among the poor in the settlements of the big cities, familiarizing themselves with life's problems. A fondness for outdoor sports, a desire to spend more time in the work of social welfare and service rather than in the comforts of the drawing room, and an ambition to live simply and quietly and without ostentation, have developed a mutuality of interest in the young couple aside from their congeniality of disposition. They have known each other since they were children, during which time the two families have become intimate as well. The Sayre family is an old Pennsylvania institution with a collegiate and theological trend quite similar to the ancestry of Miss Wilson.

Sayre is a graduate of Williams college and Harvard law school. He has spent his vacations in the sheep ranches of Wyoming, hunting in the Rockies or exploring in Alaska. He counts among his thrilling adventures a hazardous trip across Berlin strait in a 15-ton schooner, and has tramped the Canadian woods for days at a time living the hardships of the forest. He has spent some of his summers on the Labrador coast with Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, who each year ministers to the sick and needy fishermen there. Dr. Grenfell is to be best man at the wedding today. The couple has selected a modest little house in Williamsstown, Mass., where Sayre is to be assistant to the president of Williams college. Prof. Harry A. Garfield, a son of the married president, and once a member of the Princeton faculty.

Miss Wilson, the White House bride of today, was born in Galveston, Ga., 25 years ago, being two years younger than her future husband. But she has lived most of her life in Princeton, where her father was for 27 years connected with Princeton university. After being educated by a German governess until the age of 12, she attended Princeton's schools and then specialized in political economy at Goucher college, Baltimore, where she was graduated with a Phi Beta Kappa key, a symbol of high scholarship, which Sayre also won at Williams.

Miss Wilson spent two years living four days a week in a settlement house in the Kensington mill district of Philadelphia. She shared the humble fare of the gentlemen restaurant and became affectionately devoted to her charges. She taught mothers' clubs, preaching industry, economy and household concerns. She was not seen often at the afternoon teas at the White House last spring, being away most of the time speaking in behalf of the Y. W. C. A., of whose national board she is an active member. She is an ardent believer in woman suffrage, the result of her observations of social problems. She has not taken a prominent part in advancing the cause, however, because of her father's official position, but she sympathizes heartily with the efforts of women to get the ballot as an instrument for the correction of evils of child labor and the institution of other social reforms.

The bride party selected by both the bride and groom reflects in its personnel the intimate feeling of the couple for those who have been associated with them in their recreations and serious pursuits.

Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, the best man, has world-wide fame as a missionary physician in the black land of Labrador. His wife, who was among the guests at the White House today, was Miss Anna McClanahan of Chicago, where their marriage took place with Francis Bowes Sayre, today's bridegroom, as usher. Dr. Grenfell's second return from his humble home in an isolated land, to be best man at a White House wedding, adds another chapter to a career already full of unusual experiences.

Dr. De Witt Sewell Clark, Jr., another member of the bride party, is an old friend of Dr. Grenfell. He made two trips to Labrador and was Mr. Sayre's companion on their 100-mile trail across Newfoundland. He worked in the Grenfell hospitals while he was with the missionary.

Another usher, Dr. Gilbert Horrax, is a surgeon at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital in Boston. His friendship with Mr. Sayre dates back to their college days at Williams.

Benjamin Brown Burton, another of the ushers, is a New Yorker. He and Mr. Sayre were fraternity brothers at Williams. The college friendship made companions of the young men again on a shooting expedition to Alaska and northwestern Canada.

Mr. Charles E. Hughes, Jr., the last of the ushers, is a son of Associate Justice Charles E. Hughes, and was a classmate of Mr. Sayre at the Harvard law school.

The bride's two sisters, Margaret, the eldest of the trio and the musician of the family, who will be maid of honor in the ceremony today, and Eleanor, whose taste is for art study and painting, are very congenial companions. The going away of the bride is preceded by a sisterly comradeship, which Washingtonians have had many chances to observe.

The other bridal attendants were guests last spring at the White House. There is one bridesmaid from the south—Georgia—the bride's native state, Miss Marjorie Brown, daughter of Col. E. T. Brown of Atlanta, a cousin of Mrs. Wilson. She was bridesmaid last year at Atlanta at the marriage of Senator Hoke Smith's son and Miss Rawson.

The other bridal attendants represent school and play days in Princeton and college years in Baltimore. The first, Miss Adeline Mitchell Scott, is the daughter of the professor of geology at Princeton, William B. Scott. Miss Scott and the bride of today have been friends from childhood and have many tastes in common. Miss Mary George White, another bridesmaid, is the daughter of Mrs. Margaret White of Baltimore. She was a college friend of Miss Wilson at Goucher college, and has several times been entertained at the White House.

MANY BEAUTIFUL AND ARTISTIC GOWNS LEND COLOR AND BRILLIANCE TO WEDDING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Many beautiful and artistic gowns are to lend color and brilliancy to the White House wedding today. There had been little information as to who was to be asked to the wedding until the fortunate ones had their invitations in hand, when the women blushed had at once to turn their attention to gowns and hats. This brought together some of the latest modes from the centres of fashion, and many smart gowns and toilettes were to be seen at the ceremony of today.

Madame Jersander, wife of the French ambassador, dean of the diplomatic corps, who with her husband occupied a place of honor among the diplomats, is to wear black and white satin, a tunic of black chiffon, black and white chiffon forming the bodice. Her hat was reasonably large, and its trimming was white plumes.

The Countess Bernstorff, wife of the German ambassador, wears a brown and gold damask. The smart mingling of tints in chiffon in the bodice has touches of fur as relief. Her hat brought in another color, a soft violet shade of velvet.

Lady Spring Rice, wife of the British ambassador, and a newcomer to the present makeup of Washington society, wore one of the most elegant costumes seen. It was of charmesuse of a dull gold shade, the skirt bordered with an embroidered band of chiffon in which several soft colors showed. The skirt had something of the painter effect and the embroidered chiffon was used in the make of the bodice. Her hat had a top matching the dress and had an ostrich feather the same shade as the left side. She wore a splendid set of marten fur as a wrap.

Mrs. Bryan, wife of the secretary of state, will wear a coal suit in velvet. The shade is a deep orchid. The skirt is draped at the left side. The coat is edged with Siberian squirrel around the bottom and the collar is of the same fur. Her toque is of yucca, harmonizing in color with her dress. It is edged with Siberian squirrel and a fancy feather ornament was in front.

Mrs. William B. Redfield, wife of the secretary of commerce, wore a plum-colored calling costume of silk crepe. There was a dainty arrangement of chiffon and lace with silver embroidery in the softly draped bodice. Her velvet hat matched in color and had a band of dark fur and a single red rose.

Mrs. Edward Douglas White, wife of the chief justice of the supreme court, wore a costume of black charmesuse and point lace and a black hat trimmed with white plumes.

Madame Byrne, wife of Associate Justice McKenna, wore a black velvet costume. The coat had a blue collar and vest. Her black hat was trimmed with plumes.

Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, wife of Associate Justice Hughes, wore a handsome gown of King's blue velvet with a hat of the same shade of velvet trimmed with chinchilla fur.

Mrs. Garrison, wife of the secretary of war, wore sage green silk poplin, trimmed with point de Venice lace and bands of sable fur. Her hat was small, matched in color and was trimmed with fur and ostrich feathers.

Mrs. Houston, wife of the secretary of agriculture, wore brown charmesuse and chiffon trimmed with mink fur, and her hat in deeper shades had touches of the fur and an ostrich feather trimming it.

Mrs. Joseph Rueker Lamar, wife of Associate Justice Lamar, wore a draped gown of black over a white chiffon and a black lace hat.

Mrs. Mahlon Pitney, wife of Associate Justice Pitney, wore a wistaria velvet costume and hat and sable furs.

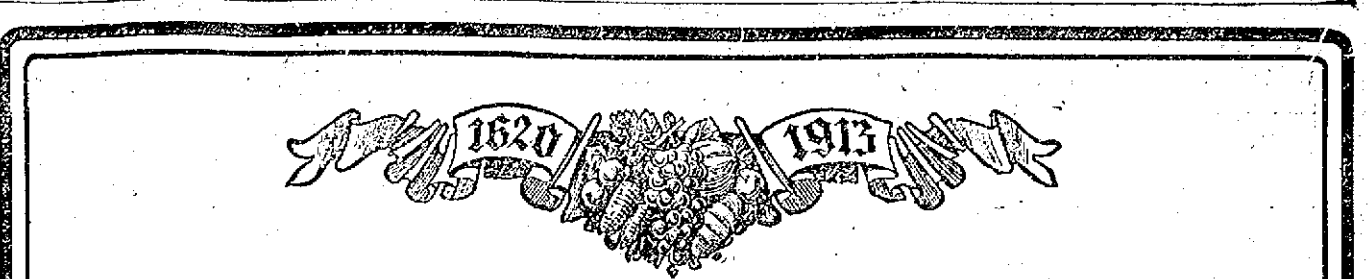

Mrs. Martine, wife of Senator Martine, of New Jersey, chairman of the senate committee which selected Miss Wilson's wedding party, wore a black and white chiffon and black silk. White chiffon and tulle appeared in the waist and where the draperies were caught there were small rhinestone buttons. Her white silk beaver hat was faced with black velvet and was trimmed with black and white plumes. Her furs were black fox.

Mrs. Joseph R. Wilson, of Baltimore, sister-in-law of the president, wore a superb costume of wistaria brocade velvet, Parisian beads, fish fur and cream lace were combined with touches of the velvet in the bodice. Her hat was of wistaria velvet with plumes and fur.

Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the secretary of the navy, wore a smart costume of black chiffon velvet with a touch of lace and ermine. Her black velvet hat was trimmed with plumes.

Madame Morales, wife of the minister from Panama, wore a costume of black charmesuse, combined with a dull

IT'S A MIGHTY GOOD THING IN THIS HUSTLING AGE OF OURS TO look backward now and then in order that we may look forward with greater hope and courage.

THANKSGIVING IS, AND SHOULD BE, ONE OF OUR MOST IMPORTANT National events for it brings us back, in memory, to the very foundation stones of our National policy.

We recall the principles which carried those men of indomitable courage to the bleak New England shores in search of a greater freedom; we review with pride their struggles to build so perfectly as to withstand the storms of doubt, discouragement and criticism of nearly 300 years.

For these things this live store, the men in it and the men behind it are thankful. We realize that we are right in building our business along these lines in associating ourselves with an institution such as

and we can look forward knowing that where our underlying principles are correct our greater growth, our larger success is assured.

We're simply good clothes sellers in every sense of the word. Our doors are always open in welcome to every man, woman and child in our community and whether you come here with a definite purchase in mind or simply to look, listen and learn; we're ready, willing and anxious to serve you.

D. D. D. In Hospitals; Standard Skin Cure

How many hospital patients, suffering the frightful itch, the raw scorching pain of skin disease, have been soothed to sleep by a soothing fluid washed in by the nurse's hands? That fluid is the famous D. D. D. prescription for eczema.

THE SUPERVISING NURSE of one of our prominent Catholic institutions (name of nurse and institution on application), writes regarding a patient: "The disease had eaten her eyebrows away. Her nose and lips had become disfigured. Since the use of D. D. D. her eyebrows are growing, her nose and face have assumed their natural expression."

How many eczema sufferers are paying their doctors for regular treatment and are being treated with this same soothing, healing fluid?

DR. GEO. T. RICHARDSON frankly writes "D. D. D. is superior to anything I have ever found. Soft and soothing, yet a powerful agent. To do the work, D. D. D. prescription must be applied according to directions given in the pamphlet around every bottle. Follow these directions—and see!"

All druggists of standing have the famous specific as well as the efficient D. D. D. Skin Soap.

But we are so confident of the merit of this prescription that we will refund the purchase price of the first full size bottle if it fails to reach your case. You alone are to judge.

STRIKE BREAKERS HERE

It is reported that many of the strike breakers who have journeyed from other states to this city to secure licenses have been unable to pass the examination and after visiting Lawrence have gone back to their home towns. It was stated today at the office of the state inspector of boilers in the Central block that nearly 100 men have applied for licenses during the past few days and although some have been successful many had little or no knowledge of boilers.

Three men have been engaged in the work of examining and of those who have tried for a license about twenty-five have received their papers and have gone to Lawrence to report for work. Besides the number from other states many applicants have come from the suburbs of Boston and some have not had any experience with boilers while others have been unable to read enough to answer the questions on the application blanks. The inspectors made short work of a lot of them.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Jean Laroque and Miss Blanche Aurora Jacques were married yesterday afternoon, the ceremony being performed at St. Joseph's rectory at 429 Quebec by Rev. Abile Amyot, O. M. I. The witnesses were Arthur Lorange and Miss Yvonne Jacques. After the ceremony the happy couple left on a brief honeymoon trip.

LOOKED LIKE HIM

Tourist Arriving in Boston is Mistaken for "Affinity" Earle

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—When the steamer Canopic of the White Star line arrived in port yesterday from Mediterranean ports, Mr. and Mrs. Howard N. Clugston of Los Angeles, Cal., were thrown into a turmoil of embarrassment on account of Mr. Clugston's remarkable resemblance in features to the much sought "Affinity" Earle, who, with his newest soulmate, is expected to land in a day or two at New York or Boston.

Had Earle's beard been trimmed close in Vandyke style, and had his hair grown thin, he could not have looked more like Mr. Clugston than Mr. Clugston looked like him on the Canopic yesterday. Reporters and newspaper photographers swarmed about the Los Angeles couple and question after question in rapid fire order was dished at them. They had come from Florence, where Mr. Clugston studied in the Gordon Craig school of acting there. Just prior to that, passengers said he had come from France, being known as an artist most of the time. There was no little boy, however, and after exhaustive interviewing, Mr. and Mrs. Clugston were allowed to go free, for his son, whom he kidnapped, is supposed to be with Earle.

LOWELL MEN ATTEND

INITIATION OF CANDIDATES INTO THE MYSTIC NOBLES OF GRANADA AT BOSTON

A big Lowell delegation of members and candidates for admission into the Mystic Nobles of Granada attended the initiation of nearly 100 candidates into the order at Horticultural hall Sunday afternoon. The reception of such a large number of new members at one time, a rare occurrence in fraternal society circles, was made the occasion of one of the biggest meetings that Abdullah Saravan, the Boston branch of the organization under whose auspices the degree was conducted, has ever held.

While the major portion of the candidates were members of the Boston branch of the order, several sections of New England sent aspirants for degree honors, and in some cases those from the nucleus of new branches of the organization. Lynn, Manchester, N. H.; Keene, Bangor, Lewiston, Belfast and Portland, Me., as well as Lowell and Providence, sent not only candidates but in several cases good-sized delegations of members to witness the degree work.

The banquet, which followed, was presided over by Grand Monarch Chas. J. P. McCue, and a concert was given. Among the prominent members of the order present were Congressman James M. Curley, Mayor Joseph H. Gagner of Providence, R. I., while Mayor James E. O'Donnell of this city were initiated with the order together with twenty other well known young men of this city.

The local arrangements were in charge of Grand Monarch Walter H. Hickey, who since assuming the position of local grand has infused much enthusiasm into it with the result that this branch bids fair to rival other promising caravans of the order. In these parts Mr. Hickey has been ably assisted in arranging the degree work by Mr. John F. Connors, secretary-treasurer of the order. The Lowell men, about fifty in all, left on special cars attached to the 12:10 train arriving in Boston about 1:20. The banquet served at the conclusion of the degree work was the most elaborate of its kind ever served in Boston.

Those from Lowell on whom the rank of noble was conferred are as follows: Hon. Jas. E. O'Donnell, John L. McDonough, James E. Donnelly, William J. Collins, William O'Brien, John C. Sayers, Charles T. McKenzie, Benjamin J. Maloney, Esq., C. B. McCarthy, Jr., F. R. Groves, James H. Farrell, Thomas F. Queally, James J. Malloy, Joseph T. McGarvey, C. Joseph Hart, M. E. Evans, George H. Harrington, Richard O'Brien, William J. Harrington, A. C. Jean, Charles B. Griffin and Humphrey Coffey.

THE RECOUNT IS OVER

AND NO IMPORTANT CHANGE WAS MADE—MR. MURPHY GAINS ELEVEN AND DR. MIGNAULT LOSES FIVE

The recount at city hall yesterday of the majority vote cast at the primaries did not bring about any important change in results. The recount was petitioned for by friends of Dr. Mignault who stood 35 votes behind Dennis J. Murphy and the recount but served to make stronger Mr. Murphy's position as he increased his lead over the doctor by eleven votes. Dr. Mignault dropped five votes. Mayor O'Donnell gained one and Mr. McKinley gained one. Dr. McCarthy gained two, and Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Osgood lost one each. Blanks lost five. The changes were very slight, as it had been expected they would be. The work of the counters had been exceptionally good.

BULLET PIERCED BRAIN

HAVERHILL MAN KILLS HIMSELF RATHER THAN LIVE AND BE DISFIGURED BY A CANCER

HAVERHILL, Nov. 25.—Placing his rifle between his knees, with the muzzle resting under his chin, Francis B. Sanborn pulled the trigger and died, the bullet piercing his brain. He killed himself rather than live and be disfigured by a cancer that was eating his mouth away. As he is the last of a well known family, and has relatives, the Knights of Pythias of Haverhill will bury him. He was once a wealthy lumber merchant.

DIES FROM COLD KILLED BY AUTO

Young Woman Commits Suicide by Jumping Into Lake Winnisquam

10 Year Old Boy Stepped in Front of Car and Was Run Over

LA CONIA, N. H., Nov. 25.—After being prevented in several attempts to commit suicide, Edith M. Jellis finally eluded watchers yesterday and threw herself into the icy waters of Lake Winnisquam before the eyes of a man who was following her on account of her peculiar actions. She was quickly rescued, but died from cold and exposure shortly afterward.

Miss Jellis is the daughter of Samuel Jellis of 301 Chestnut street, Manchester, N. H., and has been a student at the State Normal school at Plymouth, N. H. She had not been feeling well and yesterday left Plymouth for home.

On the train a friend asked Conductor W. E. Keiston to watch her as she had been acting in a peculiar manner. At Laconia she left the train, but the train crew, knowing her destination was Manchester, followed her and placed her in the car again.

At Winnisquam station she left the train again and was not noticed until just as the train started. The conductor hurriedly called to Freeman Gilman to follow her. He did so, and when about half a mile down the state road he saw her place her suit case in a farmyard, and throw herself into the waters of Lake Winnisquam.

Mr. Gilman hastened to the rescue, but she was too far from shore to be reached, and before he could land a boat she had been in the water some time and she died shortly after being drawn to shore.

While the rescuers were working over her, Dr. H. C. Wells of Laconia passed in his auto. She was placed in the car and rushed to the Laconia hospital, where physicians worked over her for hours trying to bring her back, but without success.

Nervous breakdown, caused by overstudy, is assigned as a cause for the suicide by friends of the young woman.

15 FIRE AUTOS

Boston Dept. Has the Barret Idea of Eliminating "Old Dobbin"

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—The old way for the superior officers of the Boston fire department to get to fires, in horse-drawn vehicles, will soon be a thing of the past, as a result of the purchase of 15 autos cars for this department by the city. This purchase includes the entire appropriation recently made by the city council and recommended by the mayor and Fire Commissioner Cole, and the chiefs who in the past have gone to fires behind faithful "Old Dobbins" will in the future travel in the newer and quicker way. The purchase will completely equip the department's superior officers, the repair shop, fire alarm branch and the veterinary hospital and do away with horses for the chief officers. The purchase includes 12 roadsters and three touring cars.

MCCOY.—The funeral of Joseph McCoy will take place from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Martin Heenan, 314 Central street, Thursday morning at 9:30. Funeral mass at St. Peter's church at 9 o'clock. Funeral in charge of J. F. Rogers.

CASE SETTLED

The case of Small vs. Boston and Maine railroad was settled shortly after noon by agreement of attorneys and parties.

reached the sidewalk turned around and stepped out into the street again directly in the path of the automobile. They say the driver endeavored to stop the car. The boy was knocked down, and the heavy touring car passed directly over his chest. The driver stopped, picked up the boy in his arms, and carried him into a nearby drug store. The police ambulance was summoned and the boy was taken to the City hospital where he was found to have sustained a fractured skull and internal injuries. His widowed mother, Mrs. Mary T. Burke, was notified and within a few minutes of her arrival at the hospital the boy died. The driver was placed under arrest and will be arraigned in the Roxbury court on the charge of manslaughter.

TRUST QUESTION NEXT

With the solution of the currency revision problem which will in all probability be settled early in the regular session, the administration will attack the trust question which has held the centre of the stage during the last two administrations more or less spasmodically and with little success. Though the president has given no indication as yet of a detailed or definite policy, his past utterances leave no ground for doubt that his attack on monopoly which aims at the restraint of trade will be fully as thorough as has the program he laid out for the tariff revision and currency reform.

An indication of the scientific plan to be followed in this trust investigation is given in a recent speech on the subject, delivered at Atlantic City before the national hardware association, by commissioner of corporations, Joseph E. Davies. In this speech the commissioner announced that "a scientific investigation of the economic conditions in the industrial world would be undertaken by the bureau of corporations of the department of commerce." The aim of the president seems to be to make a general rather than a specific investigation, and it seems to be the wiser plan, for trust investigations in the past were mostly concerned with individual cases that dragged on for years and left matters unchanged even after federal condemnation. When the connection between the trust problems and industry in general shall have been fully investigated it will then be time to deal with specific cases that seem to indicate defiance or evasion of the anti-trust laws.

An article on this subject in the current number of W. J. Bryan's Commoner says:

"The scope of the investigation proposed by Commissioner Davies is not limited to separate investigations of specific trusts as undertaken in the past, but covers the whole field of industrial combinations in their relations to the economic problems of the present day. The information secured by this investigation will have a wide influence in shaping the trend of all future trust legislation, and the solution of the problems arising from present industrial conditions is the next great question to be dealt with by congress."

An editorial signed by Mr. Bryan in the same issue of the Commoner covers the general aim of the imminent anti-trust legislation, and credits to the democratic party the courage that aims at the destruction of private monopoly. He attributes the failure of the other parties in dealing with it to the fact that too many of their leaders were identified with the interests which they were apparently aiming to restrict. Following is an extract from the article in which his views are clearly set forth:

"The democratic party is the only party that ever dared to lay the axe at the root of the tree and attack the principle of private monopoly. Both the republican party and the progressive republicans have dealt timidly with the trust question; both of these parties have had prominent representatives of the trusts among their leaders. The democratic party is able to deal with the subject from the standpoint of the people, and it will stand behind the president in his effort to secure legislation that will make a private monopoly impossible."

GOOD SUGGESTION FOR BANKS

A week ago the Five Cents Savings bank of Lynn had an experience which should be a warning for all savings banks and an incentive to offset the possibility of its repetition. A depositor of foreign descent called to draw out his savings and was told that before he could get his money he would have to be identified. Not understanding what was said, clearly and realizing that there was something which would prevent his getting money which the bank was holding back without apparent reason, he lost no time in spreading the news throughout the colony in which he lived, with the result that there was almost a complete run on the institution. Were it not for its sound condition and the timely offers of assistance from other banks the effect might have been serious. It is more than probable that the scare in this foreign section of Lynn was aided not a little by knowledge of the embarrassment of so many foreigners in the closing of the Traders bank of this city.

Commenting editorially on the Lynn incident the Telegram of that city makes an excellent suggestion and one that, if followed, might prevent the repetition of the recent occurrence. In all the factories of Lynn, Lowell and the other mill cities where foreigners are employed extensively, there are signs, printed in different languages, which explain the wages, working hours, etc., to the members of the various nationalities. The Lynn Telegram suggests that each bank there "on opening an account of a new depositor, ascertain his nationality and give him a list of rules printed in his own tongue which will fully explain the conditions under which the money is deposited and under which it may be withdrawn."

It is to be feared that to very many besides the foreign-born depositors of our cities, a bank is merely a place where money is stored at interest and drawn out when needed. There is the greatest general ignorance about its functions and the laws under which it is conducted. The cold formal air of some banks does not tend to remove this ignorance, and the suggestion of the Lynn paper might be adopted with advantage—not only to the depositors but to the banks.

SHOULD BE PRISON SENTENCE

Any autist found guilty of driving a machine while under the influence of liquor should be given a full sentence; a fine in such a case does absolutely no good and the punishment does not prevent a repetition. The man who drives an automobile, and there are many such, is of the type to whom the paying of fines is a common occurrence, and he will not regard it as any greater disgrace than the payment of a dollar fine to the waiter at the end of an evening's roasting. If sentenced to jail for even a short period he would have a chance to reflect on the seriousness of driving an auto recklessly through public streets and highways while irresponsible because of intoxication. After the full sentence, too, he is not so liable to repeat the offense as if he were merely fined for his folly.

This view of the matter is apparently the one held by the municipal court judge in Worcester who recently sentenced an autist found guilty of driving a machine while intoxicated, to two months in jail. If some should think this sentence severe, let them consider that the gap between a jail sentence of a month or two for driving while intoxicated, and a jail sentence of five or ten years for manslaughter is very slight. The two months' sentence for the former offense may be the means of preventing the latter.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

Practically all who advocate government ownership of railroads do so while regarding it as a necessary evil, but nevertheless the trend of the times is towards it. As great an authority as Charles S. Mellen has predicted it, not voicing his preference, and the same is true of President Roosevelt of the Pennsylvania who issues a warning concerning the ultimate effect of the legislation being universally adopted here regarding the roads. The trouble seems to be that the legislative bodies cannot see a point at which federal or state regulation should end but go on proposing new restrictions for all things that seem in need of regulation. It is to be remembered that there are still some private rights vested in the management of the roads but they are gradually becoming overshadowed by such a degree of public supervision, that we may have government control in fact before we have it in name. Possibly the result will be for good, but it is worth pausing to ask ourselves if there is no other way out of the difficulty. To get government ownership forced upon us by a lot of insolvent railroad concerns would be a responsibility wholly unexpected.

SWEET CHARITY

Following closely on the success of the great charity ball comes the story of the "Donation Day" of St. Peter's orphanage on Stevens street. Both affairs were successful speaks well for the good disposition of the people of Lowell in all that concerns charity. The season is at hand when those who bear the burden of want will feel most keenly the pangs of hunger and cold, and it is to be hoped that the charity publicly shown is an indication of a spirit that will prompt many unostentatious deeds of a like nature during the winter and particularly around the Thanksgiving time.

AUTO FELL 30 FT.; 2 HURT

Car That Plunged Over Bridge Was Struck by Train Causing Gasoline to Explode

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 25.—A spectacular automobile wreck with a miraculous escape from fatality, happened last evening at Redhouse crossing, between Springfield and Indian Orchard, where the highway passes over the Boston & Albany railroad tracks. Paul H. Lathrop, son of former Mayor Edward H. Lathrop, was driving a high-powered car toward the city and the automobile crashed through the side of the bridge, falling to the railroad tracks, 30 feet below. Lathrop and a woman companion, the only occupants of the car, were thrown out and stunned. As they lay between the eastbound and westbound tracks, the 9:15 train out of Springfield for Boston came along and struck the automobile. The gasoline was set on fire in the crash and the Springfield fire department was called out to put out the blaze. The cowcatcher of the locomotive carried the engine of the automobile 300 yards down the track. The locomotive was damaged, being delayed about 45 minutes. The victims of the accident were not struck either by the train or the debris, but were badly injured by the fall. Lathrop's head was seriously hurt and the woman, has a broken thigh and other severe injuries. Both are expected to recover. They are at Hampden hospital in this city.

ACQUIT 31 POLICEMEN

Indianapolis Mayor Says Men do Right in Refusing to Ride on Cars to Protect Strikebreakers

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 25.—Superintendent of Police Martin E. Hyland, and William E. Davis, president of the board of safety, resigned yesterday when 31 policemen charged with insubordination were acquitted by the board of safety. Both resignations were accepted by Mayor Shunk. The patrolmen were alleged to have refused to ride on street cars during the strike of the street railway employees here a few weeks ago.

Captain George V. Coffin was appointed superintendent of police, but refused to accept the position, saying that when the administration changes on January 1, 1914, he would have to resign. This would reduce him to the ranks as a patrolman.

By remaining as a captain the change in the city administration will not affect his rank. After Coffin's refusal to become superintendent, Mayor Shunk announced that he would name as chief of police the men selected by Mayor-elect Bell. If Mr. Bell would say whom he intends to appoint when he assumes charge of the administration, Mr. Bell has not replied to the offer.

At the trial of the patrolmen the men testified that Superintendent Hyland had countermanded orders to ride upon the street cars during the strike, had called for volunteers and that none of the men would willingly do such duty to protect strikebreakers. All the officers declared, however, that they would have ridden on the cars to protect citizens.

After the policemen had been acquitted, Mayor Shunk addressed them and said that he did not blame them for refusing to ride on the street cars to protect strikebreakers. He declared if the threatened teamsters' strike is called he did not wish the patrolmen to ride upon the wagons to protect strikebreakers.

THOUGHT AUTO WAS BURNING

A young man who saw considerable smoke pouring from an automobile that was stopped in front of the Wamesit bank on Middlesex street this morning rushed to the fire alarm box at the corner of Middlesex and Thorne-dike streets and sent in an alarm, but he later learned that the chauffeur had left his engine going on account of the cold weather and that no fire was in progress. The fire apparatus quickly responded and when told the cause of the alarm returned immediately.

MOTHER! IF CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED

If Cross, Feverish, Constipated, Give "California Syrup of Figs."

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation, poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the California Fig Syrup company. Don't be fooled!

VERDICT OF $480

Jas. A. O'Connor Wins

Suit Against the Field Estate

A verdict of $480 for the plaintiff was returned in the case of James A. O'Connor vs. Amos F. Hill and Dora A. Chase, administrators of the will of the late George W. Field, at superior court this morning. The plaintiff claimed that the defendants' testator owed him the sum of $480 for labor performed at the Field Machine company in the year 1912. John T. and William A. Hogan for the plaintiff and Tyler and Young for the defense.

The next case called was that of Albert A. Small, a deaf mute, against the Boston and Maine railroad. The suit damnum is $20,000. H. L. Baker of Boston appeared for the plaintiff and Trull and Wier for the defense.

Mr. Small, who is a resident of Weston, claims that while a passenger on the railroad in the exercise of due care he was caused great bodily injury and suffered bodily harm and mental anguish and was put to great expense. On a second count he says that while rightfully upon the premises of a station at Weston a train was carelessly operated and he was seriously injured and is now unable to perform any labor.

The plaintiff testified through an interpreter.

Divorce Cases

A divorce decree nisi was granted to Edgar L. Mevis at the jury-waived session of superior court this morning for desertion. Mr. Mevis was also given the custody of a 10-year-old boy. Judge Pratt stated that the mother of the child, Margaret Mevis, must visit the boy at least once a week and he also gave her the right to take the child out on condition that she return him to his father's home the same day.

TAKEN FROM BED

Haverhill Intruder Tried

to Kidnap 11 Year Old Girl Last Night

HAVERHILL, Nov. 21.—Police are guarding the home of Antonio Buccini at 161 River street, from which an unknown man early yesterday morning tried to steal Buccini's 11-year-old daughter Annie from the bed in which she slept with her sisters.

Nothing like this attempted theft of a child from her own home while her parents were asleep has so stirred the Italian colony for years. Women and children are keeping close indoors, and boys and men pause as they pass by the Buccini home and gaze curiously at the bluecoated sentries.

Annie Buccini sleeps in a room on the first floor of the house. Early yesterday morning she was awakened by being lifted from bed. In the gloom she made out that she was in the arms of a strange man.

With a scream of terror she began to fight, and the noise awoke her two sisters, who added their voices to the din. Panic-stricken, the intruder dropped the child and dove head first through the window.

When the police, summoned by the hysterical family, reached the scene, the only trace they could find of the would-be kidnaper was a cloth cap which he had dropped on the floor of the room. The vicinity of the house was carefully searched, but no clue to his identity could be found.

Buccini could only explain the attempt by the supposition that he had offended some of his neighbors, and they chose this method of revenge.

Fearful of a repetition of the attempt, he applied last night for a police guard, which was furnished.

CHANCES GOOD FOR WIN

Lowell High Has Better Record Than Lawrence—Everything is Ready for Big Game of Season

All arrangements have been completed for the big football contest between Lowell high and Lawrence high at Lawrence on Thanksgiving day morning and nothing remains to make the game the biggest of the season for either team but a good day.

Lawrence has always been Lowell's championship contest, but until this year Haverhill has been considered as the greatest rival which the Lawrence boys carried on their schedule.

Lowell, although not as strong as in some years past, ought to win the game as the Lawrence team has not shown any power when opposed to first division teams this season. The Lawrence backline is only fair and the front line is far from the stone wall type.

The high schools of the two cities have played 12 games to date and Lowell has won but four of them. Lawrence has won five contests and three of them have resulted in a tie. Following is the list of games played between 1895 and 1913:

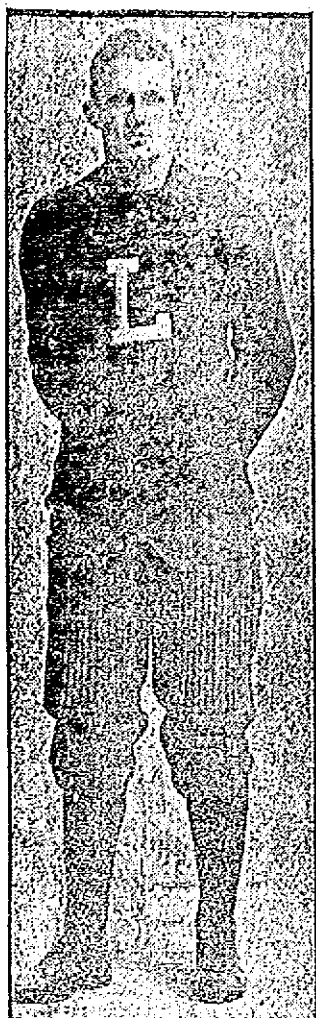

1895—Lawrence 35, Lowell 5.
1899—No game.
1900—Lawrence 11, Lowell 0.
1901—Lawrence 0, Lowell 0.
1902—Lowell 6, Lawrence 5.
1903—No game.
1904—Lawrence 12, Lowell 0.
1905—Lawrence 13, Lowell 0.
1906—Lowell 11, Lawrence 0.
1907—Lowell 5, Lawrence 0.
1908—Lawrence 0, Lowell 0.
1909—Lawrence 5, Lowell 0.
1910—No game.
1911—No game.
1912—Lowell 0, Lawrence 0.

*Two games played in 1905.

Again, on the strength of this season's record the local boys appear to have it on their opponents. Lowell high has won five games and lost but four while the Lawrence team has won five and lost the same number of contests. The records of the two teams for the season are as follows:

LAWRENCE HIGH

Lawrence 0, Malden 6.
Lawrence 0, Salem 20.
Lawrence 0, Somerville 12.
Lawrence 0, Manchester 1.
Lawrence 25, Nashua 0.
Lawrence 7, Wellesley 0.
Lawrence 34, Westminster 0.
Lawrence 3, Concord 0.
Lawrence 49, Gloucester 0.
Lawrence 25, Newburyport 7.
Lawrence 134, Opponents 55.
Lowell 12, Nashua 0.
Lowell 0, Rindge 6.
Lowell 7, Lawrence Academy 0.
Lowell 27, Worcester High 7.
Lowell 0, Malden 2.

BOTH ARE READY

St. John's Prep and Haverhill in Fine Shape for Championship Game

On Thanksgiving day St. John's preparatory college football team will go to Haverhill to play Haverhill high school in its annual game. St. John's team has been undefeated thus far this season and has been scored upon once this year. Haverhill also has been undefeated and as this is the last match of the season for both teams it will also decide the championship of Essex county and of the state.

Another feature of the game will be the officials who will have charge; for these men have been famous on the gridiron. "Tad" Jones, the famous Yale quarterback and present Exeter academy coach will referee. Harry Cahill, a star half-back of Holy Cross and Worcester Academy's coach for the last two years will be umpire. Tom Keady, the old Dartmouth player and present Lough university coach, will be head linesman. A special train has been hired by the authorities of St. John's which will convey the students

Athletes and Athletics

The Haverhill High-St. John's Prep game on Thanksgiving Day morning will be some game. On previous records it looks like Haverhill but football comparisons by scores are very deceptive. Both teams have gone through their respective seasons without a defeat and touted as the state champions. Thursday's contest will eliminate one of them. A game with the winner and either Everett or Waltham High would draw an immense crowd.

The captains of the various teams will meet tonight and formally organize the Manufacturers Bowling League. Charlie Farrell has been the real organizer of the league and if the bowlers make a go of it he is the man who should be given the credit for its success.

Lawrence fans are looking forward to a great contest between the High school of that city and Lowell High when they meet Thursday morning in Lawrence. There is certain to be a crowd of at least 5,000 at the game and an even larger attendance may be present.

Lowell is confident of winning the contest but no more so than is Lawrence. The down river boys are basing their hopes for the game on the poor exhibition the local team gave against Haverhill. It is fortunate for Lawrence that Haverhill-Lawrence negotiations were severed this season.

Minds, the great fullback of the Quakers, will be back in the Penn. lineup for the Cornell game on Thanksgiving Day. The Penn camp was in despair over the loss of their line-bucker who was laid up with a sprained shoulder. Mind's shoulder is still weak, but he will start the game at least.

Buck O'Brien, erstwhile twirler for the Red Sox, is at home in Brockton and is exercising his arm at the alley this winter. O'Brien recently stuck up a total of 323 while bowling for the K. of C. in his village. If Buck can do as well comparatively, in the box next season he will be in fast company again.

Mammoth, the Giant Russian wrestler, is looked upon by many as the only grappler who can consistently challenge Frank Gotch. The Russian is a monster in size and is very fast on his feet for a man of his bulk.

Billy Brooks will box Ping McGraw in McGrawville within a short time. Billy is up against a boy who has never been whipped and is looked upon as a wonder in that district. Any youngster of young Brooks' weight will have to show more than we have seen to stand a chance with him. He is a clever kid and packs a punch that will make them all sick. His brother, Joe (Gardner) will box the same night.

The bout between Mike Glover and Jack Britton in New York next Thursday is attracting considerable attention from the fans in the metropolis. Glover says that he will beat Britton and many of the Hub critics say that he has an even chance but it doesn't look that way from here. Britton, in condition, is too tough a scrapper for the South Boston lad.

Yesterday was Charlie Brickley's birthday and his teammates gave him a rousing reception in the rooms of Captain Storer. Brickley leaves Boston tonight for Philadelphia, where he will take in the Cornell-Penn. game on Thursday. The Harvard star will also attend the Army-Navy game at the Polo grounds next Saturday.

The announcement of Johnny Kilbane that he is no longer a featherweight does not cause much stir among the sporting fraternity. Kilbane has not made weight for the past two years for the reason that he couldn't. The featherweight champ will find the lightweight division a trifle harder to stay up in than the featherweights.

Leo Doherty of Lawrence is very anxious to state through this column that Albert Nebes, the local roller skate artist, has nothing on him when it comes to speed or endurance. He would like to skate the local boys, he states, over the five mile route for a purse of $100.

and M Brennan of the losers made no less than four baskets, scoring eight of his team's 14 points. Hurley caged three baskets for C.

Company M showed themselves superior to their opponents when it came to shooting, winning the range contest by a score of 313 to 259. Kirk showed the best score of 73.

Company C again came to the front when the balls and pins began to fly. The C rollers won the last two stringing and took the match by 79 pins. Stack was high man with 260. The summaries for the various matches are as follows:

CO. G LOST GAME
Defeated by the Milford Team Last Night at the Armory

In one of the fastest games of basketball seen at the armory for a long time, Company G went down to defeat last night before the Co. M team of Milford, Mass., by the score of 25 to 14. The regular scheduled game between Companies C and M of the local armory was also played off and was won by C. The score in this contest was: C 22, M 14.

A few weeks ago the Milford quintet defeated Co. G by a very close score and local followers of the sport hoped to see the tables reversed last night. The visitors were too strong, however, and led all the way.

Crockett was the individual star for the Milford team. He got four baskets from the floor and played a nice passing game. McGookin at left forward for the G team led his teammates with three baskets. Capt. Lynch at center played his usual consistent game.

Alleys Crowded Last Night—The Telephone Team Puts up 1479

All of the local alleys were busy last evening with match games, many of them being league contests. The Fairmounts took the Riversides into camp in their Concord league game on the Y. M. C. A. alleys, winning by the score of 1338 to 1271. Lemire was high man with 291.

Two games were rolled off in the Minor league last night. The Orecons easily defeated their opponents, the Bohemians, by the score of 1327 to 1270. Downey, with 251, was high man. In the other contest the Dodgers ran away from the Marathons by 53 pins. Welch was high in this game with 275.

At the Y. M. C. A. alleys the Coosaukees had no difficulty in winning their game with the Sioux Five, 11 pins separating the two teams when the three

CURRENCY REFORM AND ANTI-TRUST BILLS

FEATURES OF COMING SESSION OF CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The first regular session of the Sixty-third congress will start on Monday, Dec. 1. The special session will run into the regular session. Many legislators think it is likely that the currency bill will drag along until February or spring. President Wilson, however, is reported to be optimistic for quicker results. He would like to see the bill passed and signed before he takes his ten days' vacation early in January.

Aside from the currency legislation, the administration will endeavor to put through at the coming session new anti-trust laws designed to make future dissolution of trusts an actuality.

WILL OF F. W. EMERY MAKES INSTITUTE HIS RESIDUARY, AND GIFT IS UNRESTRICTED

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—One hundred thousand dollars more has been given to the Institute of Technology is the announcement made by President R. C. Maclaurin. This gift, unrestricted in its application, is from the will of Frederick W. Emery of Boston, who makes the institute his residuary legatee and the treasurer of Technology his executor. The will has been allowed and Francis H. Hall, 33, vice president of the Old Colony Trust Co., who is Technology's treasurer, has been appointed by the court.

As in the case of the Pratt bequest of three-quarters of a million dollars, this gift is a surprise, because none of the faculty was intimate with the donor, Mr. Pratt was a near neighbor to Technology, having lived in Newbury street, and Mr. Emery for the last 20 years lived in an apartment in the Hotel Brunswick. Both men found a good opinion in the institute sufficient to account for their gifts. Mr. Emery had never married, and was a great lover of out-door sports. During his life he traveled extensively. He retired from active business more than a score of years ago.

President Maclaurin has been fortunate enough to have obtained more than $900,000 so far this year. The sum is divided into the following gifts: Emery bequest, Weld bequest and Hart- lott bequest, and an anonymous gift, all of $100,000 each; the Speare bequest of $50,000 and an anonymous gift of $50,000.

that he was going to occupy the city, and fears were felt that he would set fire to the oil tanks, causing great loss. It is acknowledged that the rebels gained an important strategic point when they occupied this place. Many Americans fled before Aguilar and his troops arrived.

NEW POLICE STATION

BOSTON'S FIRST NEW POLICE HOUSE IN 25 YEARS IS READY FOR OCCUPANCY

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—Boston's first new police house in 25 years is ready for occupancy. The new court and police building at Meridian and Paris streets, East Boston, will be taken over by the police department tomorrow night. Division 7, as the East Boston station is officially known, will be moved from its present quarters on that night at 5.45.

In a general order, issued last night, Commissioner O'Meara said: "I desire to congratulate the department on the completion of the first new station house which it has received in 25 years, and to make acknowledgment to the city authorities, not only for their action in this case, but for the preparation which are in progress for replacing station houses long ago condemned as unfit for use in Divisions 2, 6 to 15."

The three station houses which are mentioned by Commissioner O'Meara as being unfit for the housing of prisoners are located as follows: Division 6, Broadway, South Boston; Division 2, City Hall avenue, and Division 15, at City square, Charlestown. Superintendent of Police William M. Pierce has been instructed to clear the old East Boston station of the department furnishings, and to have the building in condition to be turned over to the city of Boston authorities on Tuesday night, next.

PINKLETS

The New Laxative

If other laxative remedies disappoint you, try Pinklets. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules, easy to take, do not gripe or irritate but gently assist nature.

Strong, harsh purgatives defeat the very hope of a cure by leaving the bowels dry and the constipation becomes aggravated. Pinklets slightly stimulate the stomach, thorough digestion being essential to the cure of constipation.

So gentle and natural is their action that there is no fear of continuing the use of Pinklets too long. They never lose their helpfulness. They can be taken with any other medicine.

Pinklets are recommended in cases of torpid liver, biliousness, constipation and headache, to clear the complexion and whenever a gentle laxative is required. Every druggist can now supply this new laxative.

AVERT STRIKE

Trouble With the Union
Employees of N. E. T. & T. Co. Over

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—All danger of a strike of the union employees of the New England Telephone & Telegraph company is over, for the present at least.

At a conference yesterday between officers of the company and a committee of Telephone installers union 142, it was declared that some misunderstanding existed as to the exact situation and it was agreed that the company would defer for one week, at least any contemplated discharge, and that when such a discharge or lay off of a union man, took place an equal number of Western Electric company men would be laid off.

It was stated that the Western Electric company men have been in Boston for years sometimes in large numbers, doing much of the big switch-board installation work and being especially expert in that line. All, it is said, have been willing to join the local union.

Last night, at 24 Warren street, Roxbury, the executive board of the installers union met to receive the report of its committee, and there was also a meeting of the joint executive board of all seven Boston Electrical Workers' unions, including the Telephone Operators' to consider supporting action, if necessary.

While no statement of the exact terms brought about by the conference yesterday was made, it was stated that the conference had been most harmonious. Any statement as to terms should come from the company it was thought.

For the union however the following statement was made:

"The impending lay-off scheduled for Tuesday has been postponed for a week, pending an adjustment. All matters of contract work pertaining to the Western Electric company and other matters have been satisfactorily adjusted for the present."

For the company the following statement was given out last night, as being a synopsis of the conference between a delegation of installers and Gen. Supt. Dresser.

"The men had heard rumors that instead of the ordinary seasonal reductions in working force, there was to be a large general lay-off of installation men. It was explained to them that no such general lay-off was contemplated, and that the reductions were the natural result of the completion of the large number of fall transfers of telephones, desired by subscribers in this particular section."

"Another misunderstanding was the result of a rumor that all the equipment installation work was to be turned over to the Western Electric Co. The men were told that no such plan was in contemplation. The meeting was informal and harmonious. It is understood that further conferences will be held between the union's committee and the company officials during the next week or so."

SHOOT THE BUTTS

No Smoking in Recitation Hall Corridors at Harvard University

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—With the football season over, Harvard must quit smoking in the college recitation buildings. It is all right for the undergraduates to puff at weeds of varying degrees of excellence during the glitzy season, when excitement is more or less tense, but with the last game over, anti-smoking placards have been plastered on the walls, and it is up to the students to obey or be called to the college office.

Yesterday large signs were placed in the corridors of Emerson, Sever and Robinson Halls, where the students have their recitations, that no smoking will be allowed. Heretofore the undergraduates have held smoke talks in the long corridors while waiting for their classes to begin. The lid was not put on until the football season was over for obvious reasons.

Another reason for the no-puff ruling is that Harvard is getting economical. If smoking is allowed in the college halls, the risk of fire is greater and the insurance rates go up. If there is no smoking the risk is less and the rates go down. And the college corporation is sparing for the rock-bottom insurance prices, so the undergraduates, by their self-sacrifice, have been called in to help the university save money.

YOUTH ARRESTED FOR LARCENY AT CAMBRIDGE CLAIMS RELATIONSHIP TO MILLIONAIRE

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—Claiming relationship to Cecil Rhodes, the South African millionaire, a young man by the name of Cecil Parker Rhodes was arraigned before Judge Copeland in the Newton court yesterday morning on the charge of larceny. His case was continued and he was held in $500 for a hearing on Friday.

With Rhodes at the time of his arrest was a youth of 17 named James Russell, who claimed his home as Buffalo, N. Y. They were acting suspiciously on Washington street, Newton, and Officer W. F. Coady, after watching them for a while, walked up to them. Rhodes ran and Russell pulled out a revolver. The officer snatched the revolver away from Russell and then ordered Rhodes to stop.

He then took the pair to the station house, where Russell was booked for carrying a dangerous weapon, while Rhodes was held for larceny.

Both were well dressed. Rhodes said that his home was Bradford, England, that he had been in this country, but three months and that he has been working as a steward and waiter in hotels and clubs.

HORSE OWNER FINED FOR ALLEGED CRUELTY

Driving a horse, whose age was roughly estimated at 25 years, and which was terribly lame, all the way from Andover, William J. Tiebaert found himself in the clutches of the law when he drove the hobbling equine up to a local auction room last Thursday afternoon.

Tiebaert was charged with cruelty to a horse. Charles S. Clark, an agent of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, was the first witness produced by the government at the defendant's trial in police court this morning.

Mr. Clark testified that he saw the defendant drive a very lame horse

MISSING TEACHER FOUND

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 25.—Miss Lois Piper, the missing young school teacher and daughter of Kingsbury B. Piper of Fairfield, secretary of the democratic state committee, arrived here on the steamer from Boston today. She told the police she was drugged at Waterville last Monday night and taken to Boston, where she was confined until last night.

Miss Piper's story was substantially as follows:

She met two pleasant appearing men in a moving picture show at Waterville and started to ride with them in an automobile. She remembered that she ate some candy, which she now believes was drugged and dimly recalled having been in Portland.

While in Boston she was held in restraint in a room. Yesterday she overheard some one in an adjoining room say: "It is getting too hot for us." Then she was told by her keepers, whom she did not describe, that she would be liberated upon three conditions. These were that she should go to the North station on a car and walk to the Portland steamer at Bow's wharf, give a fictitious name when she registered and remain in a stateroom until Portland was reached.

She complied with all three injunctions and left the steamer early this morning.

A policeman who was asked to direct her to Union station inquired her name and upon learning she was the much-sought young teacher, took her to the police station. Mr. Piper, who by a coincidence came from Boston by train last night to investigate certain clues, was notified and joined his daughter.

ALL QUIET AT TUXPAM $15,000 FIRE IN LYNN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—"All quiet at Tuxpam," was the message by wireless early today from Rear Admiral Fletcher of the battleship Rhode Island and standing with John Lind for the most important oil port of the Mexican government on the coast. The battleship New Hampshire already is at Tuxpam. The constitutionalist general Aguilar has renewed his assurances that his men will commit no depredations on the valuable British and American oil properties there, which are the subjects of so much concern.

LYNN, Nov. 25.—Fire, supposedly started by an overheated furnace today destroyed the Edward Everett mansion, one of the landmarks of the city, with a loss of about $15,000. The house, which was built more than 150 years ago, contained many valuable antiques, all of which were lost.

DUG HOLE AND TOOK FURS

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—Working under cover of darkness, a mysterious tenant of a Milk street store tunneled through a brick wall into the furriers' shop of A. Corn & Sons last night and made off with costly furs valued at thousands of dollars. The robbery was discovered today when the proprietors opened their store for business. A gaping hole in the partition showed where the furs had been taken.

SEC. TO GOV. ELECT WALSH

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—Representative John P. Menney of Blackstone, well known in the democracy of Massachusetts, will be the private secretary to Governor-elect Walsh, according to announcement made today.

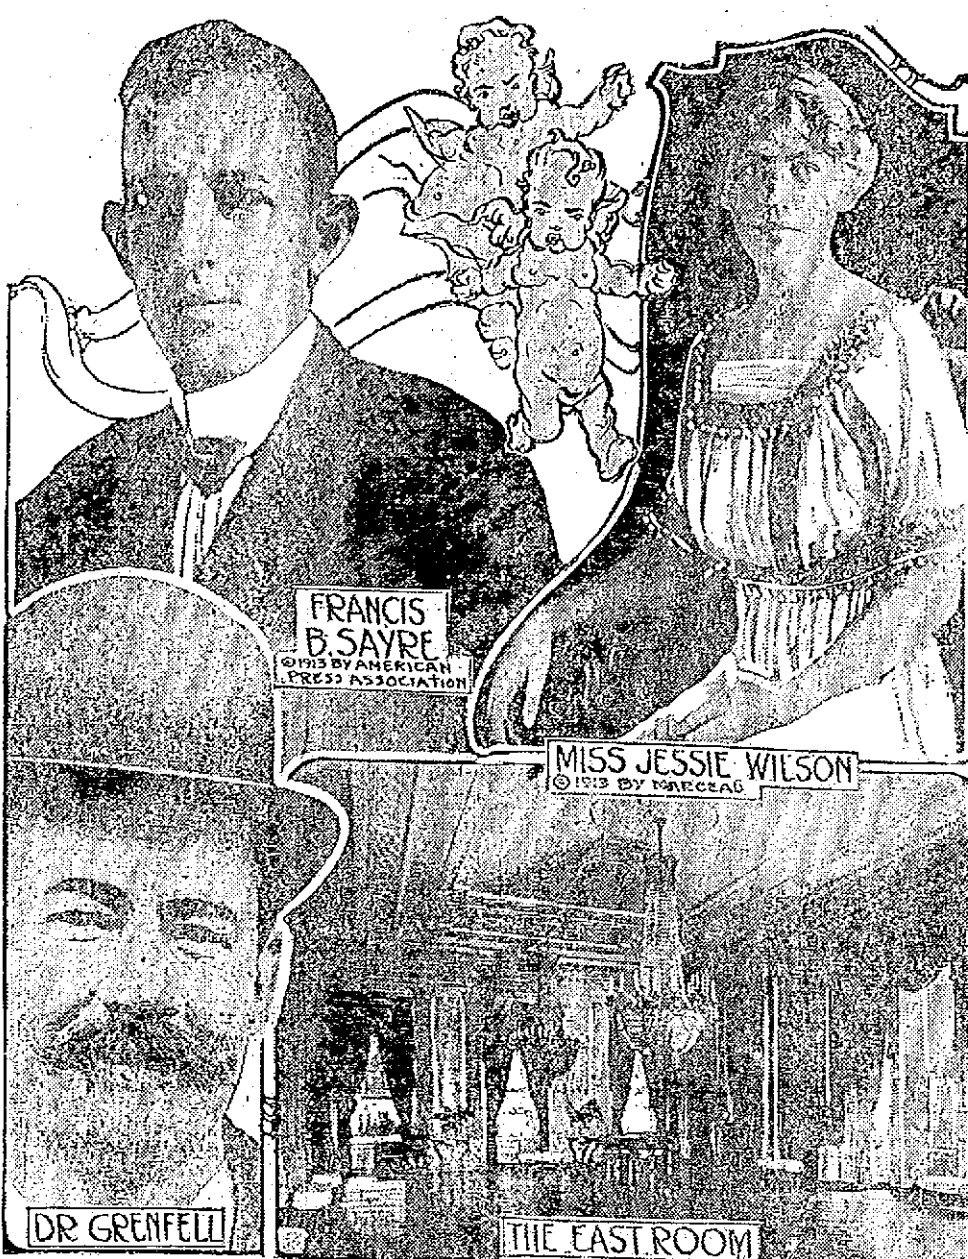

The regular meeting of Thomas Talbot Council, 165, Foresters of America, took place in the hall of that organization in the Odd Fellows building Sunday afternoon with large attendance. Commander O'Grady presided over the session and a large amount of important business was transacted. The reports of the committee showed that the council is in excellent condition in every department. At the next meeting the six knights will elect their officers for the ensuing year. At Sunday's session interesting remarks were made by the commander and also by Sir Knights McDougall, Whelton and Ready.

GROOM, BRIDE AND BEST MAN IN TODAY'S WHITE HOUSE WEDDING AND ROOM WHERE IT OCCURRED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, second daughter of the president of the United States, and Francis B. Sayre, a social worker and philanthropist, were married in the East room of the White House at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon by the Rev. Sylvester W. Beach of Princeton, N. J.

FEDERALS ROUTED BY REBELS

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 25.—At noon today the constitutionalist officers in Juarez reported the federals had been driven back all along the rebel front and that General Villa had ordered a general advance against the federals declared to be in retreat.

An Associated Press representative stationed at the top of a wireless telegraph tower 300 feet high three miles east of El Paso confirmed the rebel report that the federals were falling back south of Juarez. With strong field glasses he could see the entire maneuvers.

INCREASE FREIGHT RATES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Representatives of railroads in the Central Freight Association territory were heard today before the interstate commerce commission in support of the application for a general five per cent. increase in freight rates east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers. W. C. Maxwell of St. Louis, general traffic manager of the Wabash, was the first witness and J. L. Minnie, general counsel, questioned him on tabulated figures relating to the increase in cost of operation during the last three years and the relatively small increases in net income.

Frederick A. Delano, president of the Wabash, who yesterday co-operated with President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio in presenting the preliminary arguments on behalf of the railroads also participated in the questioning. Mr. Delano and also Mr. Willard will later be witnesses to supplement their arguments with testimony.

THREE MEN KILLED

DURBAN, Natal, Nov. 25.—Three East Indians were killed and about a score wounded today during a collision with the police at Esperanza.

MANY OBJECT TO THE HOSPITAL SITE

There are people in Pawtucketville who do not want a hospital in that section of the city. That fact was brought out at a meeting of the municipal council held this forenoon, when Mayor O'Donnell read a petition, bearing a big list of signatures, and objecting to the site in Seventh avenue, as recommended by the state board of health. Alderman Cummings, however, stated that he had heard there were people in Pawtucketville who would like to have a hospital located there. On motion of Mr. Cummings it was voted to have a public hearing on the matter next Tuesday evening.

The Meeting

Mayor O'Donnell called to order at 7:15 with all members present except Alderman Barrett, who came in a little later.

The first business before the meeting had to do with a pole location in Nineteenth street as petitioned for by the Lowell Electric Light Corp. The petitioners wanted the pole location to supply light to a house owned by Miss Alice Gillman. The latter appeared at a previous hearing and asked that the location be granted. Today Miss Gillman was represented by Senator Edward Fisher, but inasmuch as the order for the location had been favorably

MAYOR ANSWERS PASTOR

"What reasons, if any, have the nation and our state for celebrating Thanksgiving Day this year?"

"What reason, if any, has Lowell for celebrating Thanksgiving Day this year?"

"Have you personally any reason for gratitude that you care to mention?"

The above questions were contained in a letter addressed to Mayor James E. O'Donnell by Rev. C. A. Lincoln, pastor of the Kirk Street church, Mr. Lincoln having addressed similar questions to other prominent men throughout the city for the purpose of assisting him in preparing a Thanksgiving sermon.

The mayor's answers to Mr. Lincoln's questions were as follows:

Rev. C. A. Lincoln,
Kirk Street Church, Lowell.

Dear Sir:

I am glad of the opportunity afforded me by your letter to give my views as to the very positive reasons for national, civic and personal thanksgiving next Thursday.

Following the classification as outlined by you, I would say:

1. The nation and the state have strong reasons for thanksgiving because:

1. America is at peace with the great nations of the earth, and our national leaders are actuated with a fine idealism for all that concerns the uplift of mankind.

2. Domestic and foreign trade is unusually prosperous; all crops have been abundant, and far reaching legislative measures have been enacted without disturbing the industrial balance among the people.

3. There is splendid humanitarian spirit evidenced throughout the entire country, and the law seems to be actuated by a desire to benefit the many instead of the privileged few.

4. The masses of our people are religious and law abiding, and are not torn by the social dissensions that keep other countries in unrest.

Lowell has reason to celebrate Thanksgiving because:

1. Its mills and factories are running and its people prosperous and contented.

2. It has not been visited by any great natural or industrial calamity such as a business-paralyzing strike or great conflagration for the past year.

3. It promises to become still more "the city of opportunity" and there is a growing spirit of civic pride among its people.

Personally I have many reasons for gratitude of which the following are a few:

1. I enjoy the blessings of health, peace of mind, and warm friendships.

2. It has been my privilege to serve my native city and all its people.

3. Thousands have recently expressed their confidence in me and openly rebuked those who wronged me by unjust criticism.

I remain, dear sir,
James E. O'Donnell.

THE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

It is reported that certain pupils of the industrial school have taken offense and even dropped out on account of a circular sent out by the state board making inquiries as to their age, occupation, previous training, their nationality, the other members of their family and occupation. The board's object is to find what class of people attend the school in order to determine whether the courses are suitable for the bulk of the people. Thus far the courses have been tentative, but next Monday all the departments will start up with regular schedules finally approved by the state board.

The unit rule adopted in some departments in order to accommodate as many as possible has worked well. Classes were admitted for ten weeks in some departments. In the dressmaking department new classes will open December 8 on skirts, cotton dresses, woolen dresses, children's dresses. Registration for these classes opens tonight and continues tomorrow night from 7 to 9 o'clock. There is room for a few more pupils in the carpentry and electrical departments, first come, first served.

ELECTION EXPENSE ACCOUNTS

The following expense accounts in connection with the preliminary election have been filed with the city clerk since the last were published: For Mayor, John A. Osgood, $77.40. For Alderman, W. W. Duncan, $47.55; Henry F. Aubrey, $14.25 and Martin Conley, $146.60. School committee, James C. Reilly, $51.75 and Richard Sykes, $23.70.

THREE DAYS' RETREAT

During the three days' retreat which opens tonight at the Tewksbury novitiate, masses will be celebrated in the morning at 5, 6 and 8 o'clock. The evening service will be at 7:30. Catholics from other parishes are invited to attend. Rev. Fr. O'Brien, O. M. I., will be the preacher.

GRANTED A DIVORCE

Pasquale Catsimpos of this city entered a petition at the jury-waived session of the superior court this afternoon for the annulment of his marriage to Eugene Catsimpos, which took place in Lowell, September 25, 1903. James Owens appeared for the plaintiff.

On the witness stand Catsimpos stated that his wife left him one month after their marriage and since that time he has neither seen nor heard from her. It was stated by a witness that three years ago Mrs. Catsimpos left the city with another man whom she claimed she liked better than her husband. He was granted a divorce.

INCREASE FREIGHT RATES
WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Representatives of railroads in the Central Freight Association territory were heard today before the interstate commerce commission in support of the application for a general five per cent. increase in freight rates east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers. W. C. Maxwell of St. Louis, general traffic manager of the Wabash, was the first witness and J. L. Minnie, general counsel, questioned him on tabulated figures relating to the increase in cost of operation during the last three years and the relatively small increases in net income. Frederick A. Delano, president of the Wabash, who yesterday co-operated with President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio in presenting the preliminary arguments on behalf of the railroads also participated in the questioning. Mr. Delano and also Mr. Willard will later be witnesses to supplement their arguments with testimony.

MISS KELLER'S LECTURE

MISS HELEN KELLER

Mrs. Macy and Her Marvelous Pupil Heard by Large Audience Under Auspices of Women's Club

Mrs. Helen Keller, the deaf and blind girl, whose fame is nation-wide, and Mrs. Annie Sullivan Macy, her teacher, lectured at the First Universalist church last evening, the event being arranged under the auspices of the Middlesex Women's club. The affair was open to the public and the attendance was very large. Miss Keller's life has been a wonderful one, especially in her education and training, since she has, with the aid of her teacher and others, accomplished feats of intellect and learning that have heretofore appeared impossible to one without the use of sight and hearing.

Mrs. Macy was first introduced by Miss Ward, president of the club, and she gave a highly interesting account of the education of Miss Keller, who was utterly blind and deaf from the age of 15 months. Her father had written to the Boston Institution for the Blind to secure a teacher for his daughter. Having heard of the wonderful progress of Laura Bridgman, whom Dr. Howe had taught 40 years before the birth of Miss Keller, Mrs. Macy said that she herself had been almost totally blind until she was 15 years of age when an operation restored her sight, though in an imperfect manner. Mrs. Macy said that she understood the language of the deaf and blind, and had lived in the house with Laura Bridgman. Consequently she became Miss Keller's teacher.

When she first met the girl, the latter had a number of signals by which she conveyed her wants. Mrs. Macy began by teaching her to spell a few words on her fingers, beginning with "doll," but finding that she had confused with water, the teacher one day allowed water to flow over the blind girl's hands and then spelling out the word "water" for her, she showed the pupil that everything had a name. Helen had an odd manner of expression, due perhaps, to the manner in which she learned her words. After a great many anecdotes of Helen's early steps toward education, Mrs. Macy said that Miss Keller learned so rapidly that it was a question whether the teacher led the pupil or the pupil drove the teacher, and that she had to educate herself in order to keep up with her. For the first three years, Miss Keller spelled on her fingers, and then, having learned to speak, she began to use her voice. Mrs. Macy said that she learned to read the sense of touch, the blind girl finally became able to speak to her friends. This is one of the most marvelous accomplishments of any age. Mr. Charles White, a teacher in the New England Conservatory of Music, became interested in her and developed her voice so that she could speak to a large number of people.

Miss Keller insisted on going to college and although her course was most satisfactory in every way, nevertheless, Mrs. Macy said that she missed the real factor, the college life. It was Radcliffe College that Miss Keller attended and her studies were made by the teacher communicating to her by the touch method and by writing. Miss Keller used a typewriter, but occasionally when the ribbon slips or the letters do not show up, she has to do the work of hours all over again, but this she does patiently.

Mrs. Macy proved a very interesting speaker and in the course of her talk she voiced some of the great principles of education as being illustrated in the marvelous development of this girl's mind under such great difficulties.

Miss Keller was loudly applauded as she was led before the audience, and as the expression of her face unobtrusively indicated she felt the applause, she spoke briefly and simply as follows:

"Dear friends," she said, "I am glad to stand before you and hold out my hands to you in love and fellowship. I do not know how you look, and the sound of your voices is shut from me, but I feel your love and kindness. It surrounds and upholds me and makes me happy. What I have to say to you is very simple, very plain. We are all bound together; we live for each other and by each other. Our success in life depends upon mutual helpfulness. People tell me that what my teacher and I have done gives them confidence in their abilities, and makes them wish to use their minds more fully. If others are helped, we are glad, we rejoice in the obstacles that we have overcome. I was blind, now I see; I was deaf, now I hear; I was dumb, now I speak. It was through the hand of

Pupils and Others Honored or Miss Stoddard Who Ended Her Life

BROCKTON, Nov. 25.—The body of Miss Carrie E. Stoddard, the 23-year-old school teacher of the sixth grade in the public schools of this city, who committed suicide some time last Friday night by inhaling gas in her room at 25 Ellsworth avenue, was buried this afternoon at the home of her parents in Norwell.

The mystery covering the purpose that prompted her to take her life remains unsolved.

Scores of fellow teachers, mingling in mournful step with more than 200 citizens of the city, viewed the body of the young school teacher.

Every one of Miss Stoddard's pupils, the boys with set, stern, grief-furrowed faces, and the girls with faces bathed in tears, telling of their love for their departed teacher, passed solemnly by the casket, stopping but a moment for a farewell glance and to lay in quiet affection a floral tribute of their regard and esteem. The softly weeping children with their manifold clusters of flowers heightened the sombre, sorrowing aspect of the scene.

friend, Cleveland H. Dodge, a Princeton classmate of the president, and John A. Wilson, a cousin of the president, were among the first to arrive. The president had but one business engagement, a cabinet meeting.

Some of the bride party stopping at the White House were entertained at luncheon by Associate Justice Lamar of the supreme court and Mrs. Lamar. It was the last of the series of pre-nuptial functions.

The president and Mrs. Wilson had some of their relatives and friends at luncheon.

Mrs. Wilson Meets Guests

Mrs. Wilson visited the executive offices with guests, showed them the president's office and the cabinet rooms, walked through the south grounds, Charles W. McAlpin, secretary of Princeton university, Andrew D. Abbott, Edward Howe, Professors Osgood and Parrott and a score of long time residents of Princeton were early callers. Mr. Sayre and his best man, Dr. Grenfell, took a long walk in the morning and were at the White House for luncheon.

Miss Mary Tumulty, the 18-year-old daughter of Secretary and Mrs. Patrick Tumulty, was to be the youngest guest at the wedding. None of the cabinet children had been invited.

It became known this afternoon that the wedded couple will spend the greater part of their honeymoon abroad. It is thought they will sail within a week, though the time of the departure and destination is being kept secret.

SIMPLICITY AND DIGNITY PRE- DOMINANT NOTE IN WHITE HOUSE ARRANGEMENTS

WASHINGTON, November 25.—Simplicity with dignity—the same ideal which President Wilson has cherished for his administration since its inauguration—was the predominant note in the arrangements for the marriage late today of Jessie Woodrow Wilson, second daughter of President and Mrs. Wilson, and Francis Bowes Sayre.

During the 113 years that have elapsed since the White House built twelve weddings have taken place there and it falls to the lot of Miss Wilson to be the thirteenth, a coincidence all the more remarkable because the president often has told his friends that the number thirteen has run through his life as a harbinger of good luck. Curiously enough the bride party and minister number just thirteen.

The ceremony was to be solemnized in the historic East Room, majestically decorated in masses of flowers for the occasion, at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, but long before that hour the White House grounds assumed a holiday appearance. The passing of crowds outdoors that the bride party—the ushers and attendant maidens—arrived at the White House in readiness for the unusual event—the giving in marriage of a daughter of the president of the United States.

Notwithstanding its official brilliancy, there was a distinctive touch of homeliness in the day's affair. The Rev. Sylvester W. Beach, pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Princeton, N. J., where Miss Wilson long taught a Sunday bible class and where the Wilson family worshipped for a score of years, had been selected as the officiating clergyman. The maid of honor was the eldest daughter of the president, Miss Margaret Wilson. The bridesmaids were the bride's younger sister, Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, and Miss Mary G. White of Baltimore; Miss Adeline Mitchell Scott of Princeton; and Miss Marjorie Brown of Atlanta, the last a relative, and the other chums of girlhood days.

Dr. Grenfell Best Man

The best man was Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, with whom Sayre spent many months ministering to the sick and needy on the rock-bound Labrador coast. The ushers were the bride's college mates—Benjamin B. Burton, of New York; Dr. DeWitt Scoville Clark, Jr., of Salem, Mass.; Dr. Gilbert Horax, of Montclair, N. J., and Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., a son of the justice of the supreme court.

The bride and groom—both blonde and about the same height—were known as the White House beauty because of her classic Grecian features and he, a tall, lithe young man athletic in appearance with sharp features and a fair complexion—were busily occupied during the forepart of the day in getting in the hotel party, their relatives and house guests to whom alone the White House was accessible before the wedding hour.

The two young people who have lived the hardships of the poverty stricken life in big cities and who have inquired into life's social and economic problems first hand, have preferred a quiet wedding, limited to the family circle and close friends—such as it might have been had not the parents of the bride been elevated to the foremost social position in the gift of the nation. Reluctantly was it made an official affair. The White House, it was realized had never been omitted on any important social occasion at the White House, nor had the members of the cabinet and the supreme court. To Washington society today's was the supreme event of the season, yet the guests were hardly drawn from official life but from the vast circle of friends of the two families throughout the land.

169 Invitations

There were but four hundred invitations issued—500 less than at the Roosevelt wedding seven years ago—but the Wilsons are newcomers in Washington, whereas the Roosevelt administration was then five years old and officials and their wives had had a greater opportunity to establish intimate relations with the White House. Members of the cabinet and their wives and families, as well as the justices of the supreme court of the United States and their families, the ambassadors and ministers representing kings and emperors, throughout the civilized world, the Vice-President and Mrs. Marshall, the speaker of the house and Mrs. Champ Clark, Senator Kern and Representative Oscar Underwood, the democratic leaders; and Senator Gallinger and Representative Mann, the minority leaders of congress, and their wives—these were the persons invited because of their official position, though among them were many close friends of the Wilson family.

Senators and members of the house generally were not invited. If they had been, the East Room could not have held them. It was the same arrangement as was carried out at the Roosevelt wedding, in fact the preparations, decorations and general scheme of the day's program were along somewhat the same general lines.

As at the Roosevelt wedding, the diplomatic corps decided not to appear in uniform, but upon the last it was expected that the ambalgue would be a brilliant one. Though the men were to wear the conventional afternoon frock, for weeks that have preceded gowns and toilettes have been planned with minute care by the

High officials and relatives were to enter at the north front, but the guests generally were to come in at the last entrance through the glass conservatory decorated with ferns and palms and revealing through big windows the south grounds with the fountain and Italian pools, the hedges and shrubbery—the exquisite gardening of years. From the conservatory to the main staircase leading up to the East Room where, daily, hundreds of tourists are permitted to promenade, where the busts of celebrities and the tea chests and relics of traditional history are gathered—there was a staff of ushers to assist the guests with their wraps.

The East Room as it was prepared for the wedding was a picture of grandeur. The three crystal chandeliers with their pseudo-candle lights were to be but half-illuminated.

spreading a dim but suffused light over the gold trimmed walls, their cream colored pillars, their huge vases of flowers, their tapestries, their wood paneling, the ornamental ceiling is done in stucco and set in the walls are twelve low relief panels, their subjects from AEsop's fables. The window draperies of heavy yellow damask were hung loose today and the shades drawn. At the east end of the room facing the treasury building there is a series of four windows, broken by piers. It was in front of these windows on a dais banked with flowers that the wedding ceremony was to be performed.

Beautiful Decorations

The windows were draped with a large lambrequin of old gold plush with curtains on either side. Wherever there was a loop or wherever the overhanging borders of the lambrequin joined, there were large ropes of similar and bunches of lilies. In front of the windows a platform approached by two semi-circular steps had been erected. The platform itself was covered with a rug, and immediately above the steps was a kneeling bench upholstered in white cloth, tied with white satin ribbons and filled out with bride roses and lilies. Behind this, with just enough space for the officiating clergyman to stand was a mass of palms and smilax with a great bunch of lilies.

Everybody was to stand on the glistening parquet floor, for there are no chairs in the East Room except on rare occasions, at musicales. The so-called official guests, including members of the cabinet, the vice-president and the speaker of the house and their families, the justices of the supreme court and the diplomatic corps and their families were to be grouped in the southern half of the room, while the guests generally were to stand in the northern half with the immediate families of the bride and groom in the aisle between, surrounding the dais after the bride party had reached the altar. Two ropes wound in white satin marked the green carpeted aisle.

Looking down the main aisle from the dais, the green carpeting met the red rug of the long corridor which bisects the lower floor of the White House leading from the state dining room to the East Room and bordering the trio of parlors—the Red Room, the Blue Room and the Green Room. The United States Marine band grouped behind palms was to occupy a part of the great reception hall of marble floor and buff-tinted pillars.

At exactly half past four o'clock, the President and Mrs. Wilson were to descend the main staircase from the family apartments, proceeding to the state dining room, where the bride procession was to be formed. Mrs. Wilson and the members of the two families were to be escorted through the parlors to the southern end of the East Room and finally to a place just in front of the dais. Mr. Sayre and the best man were to come in from the Blue Room meeting the procession of bridesmaids and the bride at the foot of the dais.

From the western end of the long corridor at the state dining room, the bride procession was to form. In the center of the corridor, palms and floral plants had been placed. Each of the bridesmaids, escorted by one of the ushers, was to march slowly into the East room to the strains of the famous Lohengrin wedding march, played by the Marine Band. Last the bride was to enter, leaning on the arm of the president and preceded by the maid of honor. The bride was to carry a bouquet of lilies of the valley, while the bridesmaids were to carry pink roses toned in with their pink dresses.

As the bride and her father reached the altar the president was to pause while the groom was to step forward and lead the bride up the low steps to the broad dais where the entire bridal party was to stand, the president and Mrs. Wilson standing at the base of the platform.

The Rev. Mr. Beach was to read the wedding service from the Book of Common Prayer and immediately after the ceremony, the bride party was to proceed to the Blue Room to receive the guests, with the President and Mrs. Wilson standing with the bride and groom. Then the bride party was to enter the private dining room, where the table with its big cake was decorated with pink roses.

Refreshments for the guests were to be served in the state dining room. This room is lighted by silver chandeliers and 3 silver electric side-lights. It is furnished with chairs of mahogany, upholstered in dark green tapestry. Three large mahogany console tables with large carved eagles for supports were to be used for serving.

Reception After Wedding

The Blue room, the scene of the reception after the wedding, is historic for the many events that have taken place in it, chief among which was the wedding of President Cleveland. Except for decorations here and there, the room is little changed since then. There is a mantel of pure white marble in it, the shelf being supported on bundles of arrows carved in the white marble with bronze tips and feathers; the wall covering is of heavy, corded blue silk, on which is embroidered at top and bottom the Grecian fret. The curtain hangings are of the same blue material as the wall coverings and embroidered with stars. The curtain poles are surmounted by gilt eagles and the Grecian fret appears also in the ceiling. The furniture is in white and gold, upholstered in blue and gold.

Blind doors have been cut in the walls near the southern end of the room and at reception guests pass through the three colored parlor.

Through the corridors hung with the pictures of presidents and their wives the wedding guests were to promenade after the reception while the bridesmaids rendered selections, and by 8 o'clock the bride and groom expected to be speeding away on their honeymoon. Whether they will go by automobile or train is a secret. They intend to travel for about a month, getting into their new home at Williamsburg, Mass., early in January.

Washington society expects, however, to see them back for the New Year's reception at the White House, though the couple have not made known their plans to anyone except the members of the family circle.

Executive avenue between the White House and the treasury department was expected to be thronged with the carriages and automobiles of the guests, and it was here that it was expected that the greatest crowd would gather. Lines of police had been arranged for the occasion, being stationed along the east terrace and at the gates to move traffic smoothly.

WHITE HOUSE BRIDAL PARTY IS DEVOTED TO THE SAME IDEALS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Similar tastes, a devotion to the same ideals, and a desire to dedicate their lives to work of Christian usefulness and social service is the characteristic quality of Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, daughter of the president, and Francis Bowes Sayre, who today are to be married at the White House.

Both have won laurels at college for their studies in political economy and sociological subjects, and each has developed a vitality of interest in the young couple aside from their congeniality of disposition. They have known each other about two and a half years, during which time the two families have become intimate as well. The Sayre family is an old Pennsylvania lineage, the college and the theological trend quite similar to the ancestry of Miss Wilson.

Sayre is a graduate of Williams college and Harvard law school. He has spent his vacations in the sheep ranches of Wyoming, hunting in the Rockies or exploring in Alaska. He counts among his thrilling adventures a hazardous trip across Bering Strait in a 15-ton schooner, and has tramped the Canadian woods for days at a time living the hardships of the forest. He has spent some of his summers on the Labrador coast with Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, who each year ministers to the sick and needy fishermen there. Dr. Grenfell is to be best man at the wedding today.

The couple has selected a modest little house in Williamstown, Mass., where Sayre is to be assistant to the president of Williams college, Prof. Harry A. Garfield, a son of the martyred president, and once a member of the Princeton faculty.

Miss Wilson, the White House bride of today, was born in Galenaville, Ga., 26 years ago, being two years younger than her future husband. But she has lived most of her life in Princeton, where her father was for 27 years connected with Princeton university. After being educated by a German governess until the age of 12, she attended Princeton's schools and then spent a year in political economy at Goucher college, Baltimore, where she was graduated with a Phi Beta Kappa key, a symbol of high scholarship, which Sayre also won at Williams.

Miss Wilson spent two years living four days a week in a settlement house in the Kensington and district of Philadelphia. She shared the humble fare of the settlement restaurant and became affectionately devoted to her charges. She taught mothers' clubs, preaching, industry, economy and household concerns. She was not seen often at the settlement, for at the White House last spring, being away most of the time speaking in behalf of the Y. W. C. A., of whose national board she is an active member. She is an ardent believer in woman suffrage—the result of her observations of social problems. She has not taken a prominent part in advancing the cause, however, because of her father's official position, but she sympathizes heartily with the efforts of women to get the ballot as an instrument for the correction of evils of child labor and the institution of other social reforms.

The bride party selected by both the bride and groom reflects in its personal and intimate feeling of the couple for those who have been associated with them in their recreations and serious pursuits.

In the Grenfell hospitals while he was with the missionary.

Another friend, Dr. Gilbert Morris, is a surgeon at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital in Boston. His friendship with Mr. Sayre dates back to their college days at Williams.

Benjamin Brown Burton, another of the ushers, is a New Yorker. He and Mr. Sayre were fraternity brothers at Williams. The college friendship made companions of the young man again on a shooting expedition to Alaska and northwestern Canada.

Mr. Charles E. Hughes, Jr., the last of the ushers, is a son of Associate Justice Charles E. Hughes, and was a classmate of Mr. Sayre at the Harvard law school.

The bride's two sisters, Margaret, the eldest of the trio and the mistress of the family, who will be maid of honor in the ceremony today, and Eleanor, whose taste is for art study and painting, are very congenial companions. The going away of the bride breaks up a sisterly comradeship, which Washingtonians have had many chances to observe.

The other bridal attendants were guests last spring at the White House. There is one bridesmaid from the south—Georgia—the bride's native state, Miss Marjorie Brown, daughter of Col. E. T. Brown of Atlanta, a cousin of Mrs. Wilson. She was bridesmaid lately in Atlanta at the marriage of Senator Hoke Smith's son and Miss Rawson.

The other bridal attendants represent school and play days in Princeton and college years in Baltimore. The first, Miss Adeline Mitchell Scott, is the daughter of the professor of geology at Princeton, William B. Scott. Miss Scott and the bride of today have been friends from childhood and have many tastes in common. Miss Mary George White, another bridesmaid, is the daughter of Mrs. Margaret White of Baltimore. She was a college friend of Miss Wilson at Goucher college, and has several times been entertained at the White House.

MANY BEAUTIFUL AND ARTISTIC GOWNS LEND COLOR AND BRILLIANCY TO WEDDING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Many beautiful and artistic gowns are to lend color and brilliancy to the White House wedding today. There had been little information as to who was to be asked to the wedding until the fortunate ones had their invitations in hand, when the women bidden had at once to turn their attention to gowns and hats. This brought together some of the latest modes from the centres of fashion, and many smart gowns and toilettes were to be seen at the ceremony of today.

Madame Jusserand, wife of the French ambassador, dean of the diplomatic corps, who with her husband occupied a place of honor among the diplomats, is to wear black and white satin, a tunic of black chiffon, black and white chiffon forming the bodice. Her hat was reasonably large, and its trimming was white plumes.

The Countess Bernstorff, wife of the German ambassador, wears a brown and gold tulle. The smart mingling of tints in chiffon in the bodice has touches of fur as relief. Her hat brought in another color, a soft violet shade in velvet.

Lady Spring-Rice, wife of the British ambassador, and a newcomer to the present makeup of Washington society, wore one of the most elegant costumes seen. It was of champagne of a dull gold shade, the skirt bordered with an embroidered band of chiffon in which several soft colors showed. The skirt had something of the panther effect and the embroidered chiffon was used in the make of the bodice. Her hat had a top matching the dress and had an ostrich feather the same shade as the left side. She wore a splendid set of marten fur as a wrap.

Mrs. Bryan, wife of the secretary of state, will wear a coat suit in velvet. The shade is a deep orchid. The skirt is draped at the left side. The coat is edged with Siberian squirrel around the bottom and the collar is of the same fur. Her toque is of blue, harmonizing in color with her dress. It is edged with Siberian squirrel and a fancy feather ornament was in front.

Mrs. William R. Redfield, wife of the secretary of commerce, wore a plum-colored calling costume of silk crepe. There was a delicate arrangement of chiffon and lace with silver embroidery in the softly draped bodice. Her velvet hat matched in color and had a band of dark fur and a single red rose.

Mrs. Edward Douglas White, wife of the chief justice of the supreme court, wore a costume of black champagne and point lace and a black hat trimmed with white plumes.

Mrs. McKenna, wife of Associate Justice McKenna, wore a black velvet costume. The coat had a blue collar and vest. Her black hat was trimmed with plumes.

Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, wife of Associate Justice Hughes, wore a handsome gown of king's blue velvet with a hat of the same shade of velvet trimmed with chinchilla fur.

Mrs. Garrison, wife of the secretary of war, wore sage green silk poplin, trimmed with point de Venice lace and bands of sable fur. Her hat was small, matched in color and was trimmed with fur and ostrich feathers.

Mrs. Houston, wife of the secretary of agriculture, wore brown champagne and chiffon trimmed with mink fur, and her hat in deeper shades had touches of the fur and an ostrich feather trimming it.

Mrs. Joseph Rucker Lamar, wife of Associate Justice Lamar, wore a draped gown of taupe chiffon velvet, the bodice made entirely of tan color lace and chiffon trimmed with dark brown fur. Her brown chiffon velvet hat to match had a cluster of plumes at the back, shading from taupe to dark brown.

Mrs. Van Devanter, wife of Associate Justice Van Devanter, wore a black velvet gown and a black velvet hat.

Mrs. Mahlon Pitney, wife of Associate Justice Pitney, wore a wistaria velvet costume and hat and sable furs. Mrs. Martin, wife of Senator Martin, of New Jersey, chairman of the senate committee which selected Miss Wilson's wedding gift, wore embroidered black chiffon and black silk. White chiffon and tulle appeared in the waist and where the draperies were caught there were small stonem buttons. Her white silk beaver hat was faced with black velvet and was trimmed with black and white plumes. Her furs were black fox.

Mrs. Joseph R. Wilson, of Baltimore, sister-in-law of the president, wore a superb costume of wistaria velvet and black chiffon, with a touch of lace and ermine. Her black velvet hat was trimmed with black velvet and white plumes.

IT'S A MIGHTY GOOD THING IN THIS HUSTLING AGE OF OURS TO look backward now and then in order that we may look forward with greater hope and courage.

THANKSGIVING IS, AND SHOULD BE, ONE OF OUR MOST IMPORTANT National events for it brings us back, in memory, to the very foundation stones of our National policy.

We recall the principles which carried those men of indomitable courage to the bleak New England shores in search of a greater freedom; we review with pride their struggles to build so perfectly as to withstand the storms of doubt, discouragement and criticism of nearly 300 years.

And today in big successful business, you will find those same sturdy old fashioned principles uppermost. You will find honesty, pure and simple, dominating every transaction; you will find truthfulness and straightforward open-above board methods being used in every trade-winning, success-bringing effort.

For these things this live store, the men in it and the men behind it are thankful. We realize that we are right in building our business along these lines in associating ourselves with an institution such as

and we can look forward knowing that where our underlying principles are correct our greater growth, our larger success is assured.

We're simply good clothes sellers in every sense of the word. Our doors are always open in welcome to every man, woman and child in our community and whether you come here with a definite purchase in mind or simply to look, listen and learn; we're ready, willing and anxious to serve you.

shade of heliotrope chiffon broche with Her hat repeated these colors. Miss Morales was in white satin with a tunic of blue crepe embroidered in pink roses. Her hat was a large picture effect.

Madame Calderon, wife of the Bolivian minister, wore a Paris costume of black velours, with an embroidered satin band around the skirt. The black chiffon tunic was edged with skunk and that fur also appeared in the trimming of the black over a white chiffon blouse. A short coat was of black velours and her small black hat had a high white plume at one side.

Madame Havenith, wife of the Belgian minister, wore a gown of black satin with point d'angleterre lace on the corsage and a black lace hat.

Madame Castillo, wife of the Nicaraguan minister, wore a black velvet costume embroidered in blue floss and a large black velvet picture hat trimmed with paradise feathers.

Madame Suarez, wife of the minister from Chile, wore a handsome black velvet costume with lace on the bodice and a large black velvet hat.

Madame Byrn, wife of the minister from Norway, wore a gown of black satin and cream color lace with a black hat.

Madame de Rismo, wife of the Spanish minister, wore a smart costume of black panne velvet. The skirt was draped and the waist finished with tulle and white lace. Her hat was of black velvet.

Madame de la Vega-Calderon, wife of the Cuban charge d'affaires, wore black champagne trimmed with embroidery and jets, a large red velvet rose at the belt, three scabbard pendants and large diamond brooch, and a black velvet hat with white ostrich plumes.

Madame Peynaud, wife of the minister from the Dominican republic, wore a mahogany colored costume, trimmed with black fur. Her black velvet hat was trimmed with fur.

Madame Ali Kuli Kahn, wife of the Persian charge d'affaires, wore a night blue chiffon over satin the same shade. Her velvet hat matched in shade. She wore her pearls and a set of dark furs.

Mrs. Franklin K. Kane, wife of the secretary of the interior, wore a blue brocade calling dress and a long blue velvet coat. Her hat was of dark blue velvet and had creamy ostrich plumes trimming it.

Miss Genevieve Clark, debutante daughter of Speaker Clark, wore a dainty frock of pink chiffon cloth, made over old blue satin. Her hat was a black picture model.

Princess Traillor Prabhadi, wife of the Siamese minister, wore a stunning gown of yellow crepe and net, embroidered in crystal beads. A tint of Oriental coloring showed through the entire gown. At the corsage she wore a red rose. Her hat was black trimmed with fur and paradise plumes.

Mrs. William B. Wilson, wife of the secretary of labor, made her first appearance at a White House function today. Her dress was of taupe meuble poplin, trimmed with cut steel ornaments and touches of lavender velvet and lace. Her small hat was black and was trimmed with black plumes.

D. D. D. In Hospitals; Standard Skin Cure

How many hospital patients, suffering from the frightful itch, the raw scorching pain of skin disease, have been soothed to sleep by a soothing fluid washed in by the nurse's hands?

That fluid is the famous D. D. D. prescription for eczema.

THE SUPERVISING NURSE of one of our prominent Catholic institutions (frame of nurse and institution on application), writes regarding a patient, "The disease had eaten her eyebrows away. Her nose and lips had become disfigured. Since the use of D. D. D. her eyebrows are growing, her nose and face have assumed their natural expression."

How many eczema sufferers are paying their doctors for regular treatment and are being treated with this same soothing, healing fluid?

DR. GEO. T. RICHARDSON frankly:

writes "D. D. D. is superior to anything I have ever found. Soft and soothing, yet a powerful agent."

To do the work, D. D. D. Prescription must be applied according to directions given in the pamphlet around every bottle. Follow these directions—and see!

And it certainly takes away the itch once—the moment the fluid is applied. The skin is soothed—calmed—so thoroughly refreshed—deliciously cooled.

All druggists of standing have the famous D. D. D. as well as the efficient D. D. D. Skin Soap.

But we are so confident of the merits of this prescription that we will refund the purchase price of the first full size bottle if it fails to reach your case. You alone are to judge.

A. W. DOWS & CO., Druggists.

STRIKE BREAKERS HERE

It is reported that many of the strike breakers who have journeyed from other states to this city to secure licenses have been unable to pass the examination and after visiting Lawrence have gone back to their home towns. It was stated today at the office of the state inspector of boilers in the Central block that nearly 100 men have applied for licenses during the past few days and although some have been successful many had little or no knowledge of boilers.

Three men have been engaged in the work of examining and of those who have tried for a license about twenty-five have received their papers and have gone to Lawrence to report for work. Besides the number from other states many applicants have come from the suburbs of Boston and some have not had any experience with boilers while others have been unable to read enough to answer the questions on the application blanks. The inspectors made short work of a lot of them.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Jean Larocque and Miss Blanche Aurora Jacques were married yesterday afternoon, the ceremony being performed at St. Joseph's rectory at 4:30 o'clock by Rev. Abile Amyot, O. M. I. The witnesses were Arthur Larocque and Miss Yvonne Jacques. After the ceremony the happy couple left on a brief honeymoon trip.

LOOKED LIKE HIM

Tourist Arriving in Boston is Mistaken for "Affinity" Earle

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—When the steamer Canopic of the White Star line arrived in port yesterday from Mediterranean ports, Mr. and Mrs. Howard N. Clugston of Los Angeles, Cal., were thrown into a turmoil of embarrassment on account of Mr. Clugston's remarkable resemblance in features to the much sought "Affinity" Earle, who with his newest substrate, is expected to land in a day or two at New York or Boston.

Had Earle's beard been trimmed close in Vandyke style, and had his hair grown thin, he could not have looked more like Mr. Clugston than Mr. Clugston looked like him on the Canopic yesterday. Reporters and newspaper photographers swarmed about the Los Angeles couple, and question after question in rapid fire order was flung at them. They had come from Florence, where Mr. Clugston studied in the Gordon Craig school of acting there. Just prior to that, passengers said he had come from France, being known as an artist most of the time. There was no little boy, however, and after exhaustive interviewing, Mr. and Mrs. Clugston were allowed to go free, for his son, whom he kidnapped, is supposed to be with Earle.

INITIATION OF CANDIDATES INTO THE MYSTIC NOBLES OF GRANADA AT BOSTON

A big Lowell delegation of members and candidates for admission into the Mystic Nobles of Granada attended the initiation of nearly 400 candidates into the order at Horticultural hall Sunday afternoon. The reception of such a large number of new members at one time, a rare occurrence in fraternal society circles, was made the occasion of one of the biggest meetings that Abigail Saravane, the Boston branch of the organization under whose auspices the degree was conferred, has ever held.

While the master portion of the candidates were members of the Boston branch of the order, several sections of New England sent aspirants for degree honors, and in some cases those taken in will form the nucleus for new branches of the organization. Lynn, Manchester, N. H., Keene, Bangor, Lewiston, Belfast and Portland, Me., as well as Lowell and Providence, sent not only candidates but in several cases good-sized delegations of members to witness the degree work.

The banquet which followed was presided over by Grand Monarch Chas. J. McCue, and a concert was given. Among the prominent members of the order present were Congressman James M. Curley, Mayor Joseph H. Gainer of Providence, R. I. while Mayor James E. O'Donnell and Commissioner James E. Donnelly of this city were initiated with the order together with twenty other well known young men of this city.

The local arrangements were in charge of Grand Monarch Walter H. Hickey, who since assuming the position of head of the local caravan has infused much enthusiasm into it with the result that the branch has been able to rival other promising caravans of the order in these parts. Mr. Hickey has been assisted in arranging the details by Mr. John F. Connors, secretary-treasurer of the order. The Lowell men, about fifty in all, left on special cars attached to the 12:10 train arriving in Boston about 1:20. The banquet served at the conclusion of the degree work was the most elaborate of its kind ever served in Boston.

Those from Lowell on whom the rank of noble was conferred are as follows: Hon. Jas. E. O'Donnell, John I. McDonough, James E. Donnelly, William J. Collins, William O'Brien, John C. Sayers, Charles T. McKenzie, Benjamin J. Maloney, Esq., C. E. McCarthy, Jr., F. R. Groves, James H. Farrell, Thomas F. Queally, James J. Malloy, Joseph T. McGarvey, C. Joseph Hart, M. E. Adams, George M. Harrigan, Richard O'Brien, William C. Harrington, A. C. Jean, Charles R. Griffin and Humphrey Coffey.

AND NO IMPORTANT CHANGE WAS MADE—MR. MURPHY GAINS ELEVEN AND DR. MIGNAULT LOSES FIVE

The recount at city hall yesterday of the mayoralty vote cast at the primaries did not bring about any important change in results. The recount was petitioned for by friends of Dr. Mignault who stood 95 votes behind Dennis J. Murphy and the recount but served to make stronger Mr. Murphy's position as he increased his lead over the doctor by eleven votes. Dr. Mignault dropped five votes. Mayor O'Donnell gained one and Mr. McKinley gained one. Dr. McCarthy gained two, and Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Osgood lost one each. Blanks lost five. It had been expected that the recount would be a change of very slight importance. The work of the counters had been exceptionally good.

BULLET PIERCED BRAIN

HAVSBILL MAN KILLS HIMSELF RATHER THAN LIVE AND BE DISFIGURED BY A CANCER

HAVSBILL, Nov. 25.—Placing his rifle between his knees, with the muzzle resting under his chin, Francis B. Sanborn pulled the trigger and died, the bullet piercing his brain. He killed himself rather than live and be disfigured by a cancer that was eating his mouth away. As he is the last of a well known family, and has no relatives, the Knights of Pythias of Hampstead will bury him. He was once a wealthy lumber merchant.

10 Year Old Boy Stepped in Front of Car and Was Run Over

LACONIA, N. H., Nov. 25.—After being prevented in several attempts to commit suicide, Edith M. Jellis finally eluded watchers yesterday and threw herself into the icy waters of Lake Winnisquam before the eyes of a man who was following her on account of her peculiar actions. She was quickly rescued, but died from cold and exposure shortly afterward.

Jellis is the daughter of Samuel Jellis of 301 Chestnut street, Manchester, N. H., and has been a student at the State Normal school at Plymouth, N. H. She had not been feeling well and yesterday left Plymouth for home. On the train a friend asked Conductor W. E. Keniston to watch her as she had been acting in a peculiar manner. At Laconia she left the train, but the train crew, knowing her destination was Manchester, followed her and placed her in the car again.

At Winnisquam station she left the train again and was not noticed until just as the train started. The conductor hurriedly called to Freeman Gilman to follow her. He did so, and when about half a mile down the state road he saw her place her suit case in a farmyard, and throw herself into the waters of Lake Winnisquam.

Mr. Gilman hastened to the rescue, but she was too far from shore to be reached, and before he could find a boat she had been in the water some time and she died shortly after being drawn to shore.

While the rescuers were working over her, Dr. H. C. Wells of Laconia passed in his auto. She was placed in the car and rushed to the Laconia hospital, where physicians worked over her for hours trying to bring life back, but without success.

Nervous breakdown, caused by over-study, is assigned as a cause for the suicide by friends of the young woman.

15 FIRE AUTOS

Boston Dept. Has the Barret Idea of Eliminating "Old Dobbin"

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—The old way for the superior officers of the Boston fire department to get to fires, in horse-drawn vehicles, will soon be a thing of the past as a result of the purchase of 15 autos cars for this department by the city. This purchase includes the entire appropriation recently made by the city council and recommended by the mayor and Fire Commissioner Cole, and the chiefs who in the past have gone to fires behind faithful "Old Dobbin" will in the future travel in the newer and quicker way. The purchase will completely equip the department's superior officers, the repair shop, fire alarm branch and the veterinary hospital and do away with horses for the chief officers. The purchase includes 12 roadsters and three touring cars.

MCCOY.—The funeral of Joseph McCoy will take place from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Martin Hovart, 574 Central street, Thursday morning at 8:30. Funeral mass at St. Peter's church at 9 o'clock. Funeral in charge of J. F. Rogers.

CASE SETTLED

The case of Small vs. Boston and Maine railroad was settled shortly after noon by agreement of attorneys and parties.

DIES FROM COLD KILLED BY AUTO

10 Year Old Boy Stepped in Front of Car and Was Run Over

BOSTON, Nov. 25.—William Burke, 10 years old, of 168 Cedar street, Roxbury, was struck by an automobile while crossing Columbus avenue, opposite No. 140, about 3 p. m. last night, sustaining injuries from which he died an hour later at the City hospital.

The automobile is owned by Mrs. Eva Goppner of 157 Lamartine street, Jamaica Plain, and was operated by Conrad Schwartz of 99 Boylston street, Jamaica Plain.

According to witnesses, the Burke boy crossed the street and after he had reached the sidewalk turned around and stepped out into the street again directly in the path of the automobile. They say the driver endeavored to stop the car. The boy was knocked down and the heavy touring car passed directly over his chest.

The driver stopped, picked up the boy in his arms, and carried him into a nearby drug store. The police ambulance was summoned and the boy was taken to the City hospital where he was found to have sustained a fractured skull and internal injuries.

His widowed mother, Mrs. Mary T. Burke, was notified and within a few minutes of her arrival at the hospital the boy died.

The driver was placed under arrest and will be arraigned in the Roxbury court on the charge of manslaughter.

TRUST QUESTION NEXT

With the solution of the currency revision problem which will in all probability be settled early in the regular session, the administration will attack the trust question which has held the centre of the stage during the last two administrations more or less spasmodically and with little success. Though the president has given no indication as yet of a detailed or definite policy, his past utterances leave no ground for doubt that his attack on monopoly which aims at the restraint of trade will be fully as thorough as has the program he laid out for the tariff revision and currency reform.

An indication of the scientific plan to be followed in this trust investigation is given in a recent speech on the subject, delivered at Atlantic City before the national hardware association, by commissioner of corporations, Joseph E. Davies. In this speech the commissioner announced that "a scientific investigation of the economic conditions in the industrial world would be undertaken by the bureau of corporations of the department of commerce." The aim of the president seems to be to make a general rather than a specific investigation, and it seems to be the wiser plan, for trust investigations in the past were mostly concerned with individual cases that dragged on for years and left matters unchanged even after federal condemnation. When the connection between the trust problems and industry in general shall have been fully investigated it will then be time to deal with specific cases that seem to indicate defiance or evasion of the anti-trust laws.

An article on this subject in the current number of W. J. Bryan's Commonwealth says:
"The scope of the investigation proposed by Commissioner Davies is not limited to separate investigations of specific trusts as undertaken in the past, but covers the whole field of industrial combinations in their relations to the economic problems of the present day. The information secured by this investigation will have a wide influence in shaping the trend of all future trust legislation, and the solution of the problems arising from present industrial conditions in the next great question to be dealt with by congress."

An editorial signed by Mr. Bryan in the same issue of the Commonwealth covers the general aim of the imminent anti-trust legislation, and credits to the democratic party the courage that aims at the destruction of private monopoly. He attributes the failure of the other parties in dealing with it to the fact that too many of their leaders were identified with the interests which they were apparently aiming to restrict. Following is an extract from the article in which his views are clearly set forth:

"The democratic party is the only party that ever dared to lay the axe at the root of the tree and attack the principle of private monopoly. Both the republican party and the progressive republicans have dealt, timidly with the trust question; both of these parties have had prominent representatives of the trusts among their leaders. The democratic party is able to deal with the subject from the standpoint of the people, and it will stand behind the president in his effort to secure legislation that will make a private monopoly impossible."

GOOD SUGGESTION FOR BANKS

A week ago the Five Cents Savings bank of Lynn had an experience which should be a warning for all savings banks and an incentive to offset the possibility of its repetition. A depositor of foreign descent called to draw out his savings and was told that before he could get his money he would have to be identified. Not understanding what was said clearly and realizing that there was something which would prevent his getting money which the bank was holding back without apparent reason, he lost no time in spreading the news throughout the colony in which he lived, with the result that there was almost a complete run on the institution. Were it not for its sound condition and the timely offer of assistance from other banks the effect might have been serious. It is more than probable that the scare in this foreign section of Lynn was aided not a little by knowledge of the embarrassment of so many foreigners in the closing of the Traders bank of this city.

Commenting editorially on the Lynn incident the Telegram of that city makes an excellent suggestion and one that, if followed, might prevent the repetition of the recent occurrence. In all the factories of Lynn, Lowell and the other mill cities where foreigners are employed extensively, there are signs, printed in different languages, which explain the wages, working hours, etc., to the members of the various nationalities. The Lynn Telegram suggests that each bank there "on opening an account of a new depositor, ascertain his nationality and give him a list of rules printed in his own tongue which will fully explain the conditions under which the money is deposited and under which it may be withdrawn."

It is to be feared that to very many

besides the foreign-born depositors of our cities, a bank is merely a place where money is stored at interest and drawn out when needed. There is the greatest general ignorance about its functions and the laws under which it is conducted. The cold formal air of some banks does not tend to remove this ignorance, and the suggestion of the Lynn paper might be adopted with advantage—not only to the depositors but to the banks.

SHOULD BE PRISON SENTENCE

Any autoist found guilty of driving a machine while under the influence of liquor should be given a jail sentence; a fine in such a case does absolutely no good and the punishment does not prevent a repetition. The man who drives an automobile, and there are many such, is of the type to whom the paying of fines is a common occurrence, and he will not regard it as any greater disgrace than the payment of a dollar tip to the waiter at the end of an evening's roystering. If sentenced to jail for even a short period he would have a chance to reflect on the seriousness of driving an auto recklessly through public streets and highways while irresponsible because of intoxication. After the jail sentence, too, he is not so liable to repeat the offense as if he were merely fined for his folly.

This view of the matter is apparently the one held by the municipal court judge in Worcester who recently sentenced an autoist found guilty of driving a machine while intoxicated, to two months in jail. If some should think this sentence severe, let them consider that the gap between a jail sentence of a month or two for driving while intoxicated, and a jail sentence of five or ten years for manslaughter is very slight. The two months' sentence for the former offense may be the means of preventing the latter.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

Practically all who advocate government ownership of railroads do so while regarding it as a necessary evil, but nevertheless the trend of the times is towards it. As great an authority as Charles S. Mellen has predicted it, not voicing his preference, and the same is true of President Roosevelt of the Pennsylvania who issues a warning concerning the ultimate effect of the legislation being universally adopted here regarding the roads. The trouble seems to be that the legislative bodies cannot see a point at which federal or state regulation should end but go on proposing new restrictions for all things that seem in need of regulation. It is to be remembered that there are still some private rights vested in the management of the roads but they are gradually becoming overshadowed by such a degree of public supervision, that we may have government control in fact before we have it in name. Possibly the result will be for good, but it is worth pausing to ask ourselves if there is no other way out of the difficulty. To get government ownership forced upon us by a lot of insolvent railroad concerns would be a responsibility wholly unexpected.

SWEET CHARITY

Following closely on the success of the great charity ball comes the story of the "Donation day" of St. Peter's orphanage on Stevens street. That both affairs were successful speaks well for the good disposition of the people of Lowell in all that concerns charity. The season is at hand when those who bear the burden of want will feel most keenly the pangs of hunger and cold, and it is to be hoped that the charity publicly shown is an indication of a spirit that will prompt many unostentatious deeds of a like nature during the winter and particularly around the Thanksgiving time.

AUTO FELL 30 FT.; 2 HURT

Car That Plunged Over Bridge Was Struck by Train Causing Gasoline to Explode

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 25.—A spectacular automobile wreck with a miraculous escape from fatality, happened last evening at Redhouse crossing, between Springfield and Indian Orchard, where the highway passes over the Boston & Albany railroad tracks. Paul H. Lathrop, son of former Mayor Edward H. Lathrop, was driving a high-powered car toward the city and the automobile crashed through the side of the bridge, falling to the railroad tracks, 30 feet below. Lathrop and a woman companion, the only occupants of the car, were thrown out and stunned. As they lay between the east-bound and westbound tracks, the 3.15 train out of Springfield for Boston came along and struck the automobile. The gasoline was set on fire in the crash and the Springfield fire department was called out to put out the blaze. The cowcatcher of the locomotive carried the engine of the automobile 300 yards down the track. The locomotive was damaged, being delayed about 45 minutes. The victims of the accident were not struck either by the train or the debris, but were badly injured by the fall. Lathrop's head was seriously hurt and the woman, has a broken thigh and other severe injuries. Both are expected to recover. They are at Hampden hospital in this city.

ACQUIT 31 POLICEMEN

Indianapolis Mayor Says Men do Right in Refusing to Ride on Cars to Protect Strikebreakers

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 25.—Superintendent of Police Martin E. Hyland, and William E. Davis, president of the board of safety, resigned yesterday when 31 policemen charged with insubordination were acquitted by the board of safety. Both resignations were accepted by Mayor Shank. The patrolmen were alleged to have refused to ride on street cars during the strike of the street railway employees here a few weeks ago.

Captain George V. Coffin was appointed superintendent of police, but refused to accept the position, saying that when the administration changes on January 1, 1914, he would have to resign. This would reduce him to the ranks as a patrolman. By remaining as a captain the change in the city administration will not affect his rank. After Coffin's refusal to become superintendent, Mayor Shank announced that he would name as chief of police the men selected by Mayor-elect Bell. If Mr. Bell would say whom he intends to appoint when he assumes charge of the administration, Mr. Bell has not replied to the offer. At the trial of the patrolmen the men testified that Superintendent Hyland had countermanded orders to ride upon the street cars during the strike, had called for volunteers and that none of the men would willingly do such duty to protect strikebreakers. All the officers declared, however, that they would have ridden on the cars to protect citizens.

After the policemen had been acquitted, Mayor Shank addressed them and said that he did not blame them for refusing to ride on the street cars to protect strikebreakers. He declared if the threatened teamsters' strike is called he did not wish the patrolmen to ride upon the wagons to protect strikebreakers.

THOUGHT AUTO WAS BURNING
A young man who saw considerable smoke pouring from an automobile that was stopped in front of the Western bank on Middlesex street this morning rushed to the fire alarm box at the corner of Middlesex and Thorne-dike streets and sent in an alarm, but he later learned that the chauffeur had left his engine going on account of the cold weather and that no fire was in progress. The fire apparatus quickly responded and when told the cause of the alarm returned immediately.

MOTHER! IF CHILD'S TONGUE IS COATED

If Cross, Feverish, Constipated, Give "California Syrup of Figs."

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation, poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the California Fig Syrup company. Don't be fooled!

VERDICT OF $480

Jas. A. O'Connor Wins Suit Against the Field Estate

A verdict of $480 for the plaintiff was returned in the case of James A. O'Connor vs. Amos F. Hill and Dora A. Chase, administrators of the will of the late George W. Field, at superior court this morning. The plaintiff claimed that the defendant's testator owed him the sum of $480 for labor performed at the Field Machine company in the year 1912. John J. and William A. Hogan for the plaintiff and Tyler and Young for the defense.

The next case called was that of Albert A. Small, a dent man, against the Boston and Maine railroad. The ad damnum is $20,000. H. L. Baker of Boston appeared for the plaintiff and Trull and Wier for the defense.

Mr. Small, who is a resident of Weston, claims that while a passenger on the railroad in the exercise of due care he was caused great bodily injury and suffered bodily harm and mental anguish and was put to a great expense. On a second count he says that while rightfully upon the premises of a station at Weston a train was carelessly operated and he was seriously injured and is now unable to perform any labor.

The plaintiff testified through an interpreter.

Divorce Cases
A divorce decree nisi was granted to Edgar L. Mevis at the jury-waived session of superior court this morning for desertion. Mr. Mevis was also given the custody of a 10-year-old boy. Judge Pratt stated that the mother of the child, Margaret Mevis, must visit the boy at least once a week and he also gave her the right to take the child out on condition that she return him to his father's home the same day.

TAKEN FROM BED

Haverhill Intruder Tried to Kidnap 11 Year Old Girl Last Night

HAVERHILL, Nov. 21.—Police are guarding the home of Antonio Buccini at 167 River street, from which an unknown man early yesterday morning tried to steal Buccini's 11-year-old daughter Annie from the bed in which she slept with her sisters.

Nothing like this attempted theft of a child from her own home while her parents were asleep has so stirred the Italian colony for years. Women and children are keeping close indoors, and boys and men pause as they pass by the Buccini home and gaze curiously at the big crowd of neighbors.

Annie Buccini sleeps in a room on the first floor of the house. Early yesterday morning she was awakened by being lifted from bed. In the gloom she made out that she was in the arms of a strange man.

With a scream of terror she began to fight, and the man awoke her two sisters, who added their voices to the din. Panic-stricken, the intruder dropped the child and dove head first through the window.

When the police, summoned by the hysterical family, reached the scene, the only trace they could find of the would-be kidnapper was a cloth cap which he had dropped on the floor of the room. The vicinity of the house was carefully searched, but no clue to his identity could be found.

Buccini could only explain the attempt by the supposition that he had offended some of his neighbors, and they chose this method of revenge. Fearful of a repetition of the attempt, he applied last night for a policeman, which was furnished.

CHANCES GOOD FOR WIN

Lowell High Has Better Record Than Lawrence—Everything is Ready for Big Game of Season

All arrangements have been completed for the big football contest between Lowell high and Lawrence high at Lawrence on Thanksgiving day morning and nothing remains to make the game the biggest of the season for either team but a good day.

Lawrence has always been Lowell's championship contest, but until this year Haverhill has been considered as the greatest rival with the Lawrence boys carried on their schedule.

Lowell, although not as strong as in some years past, ought to win the game as the Lawrence team has not shown any power when opposed to first division teams this season. The Lawrence backline is only fair and the front line is far from the stone wall type.

The high schools of the two cities have played 12 games to date and Lowell has won four of them. Lawrence has won five contests and three of them have resulted in a tie. Following is the list of games played between 1898 and 1913:

1898—Lawrence 13, Lowell 5.
1899—No game.
1900—Lawrence 11, Lowell 0.
1901—Lawrence 0, Lowell 0.
1902—Lowell 6, Lawrence 5.
1903—No game.
1904—Lawrence 12, Lowell 0.
1905—Lawrence 12, Lowell 0.
1906—Lowell 11, Lawrence 0.
1907—Lowell 5, Lawrence 0.
1908—Lawrence 0, Lowell 0.
1909—Lawrence 5, Lowell 0.
1910—No game.
1911—No game.
1912—Lowell 0, Lawrence 0.

*Two games played in 1905.

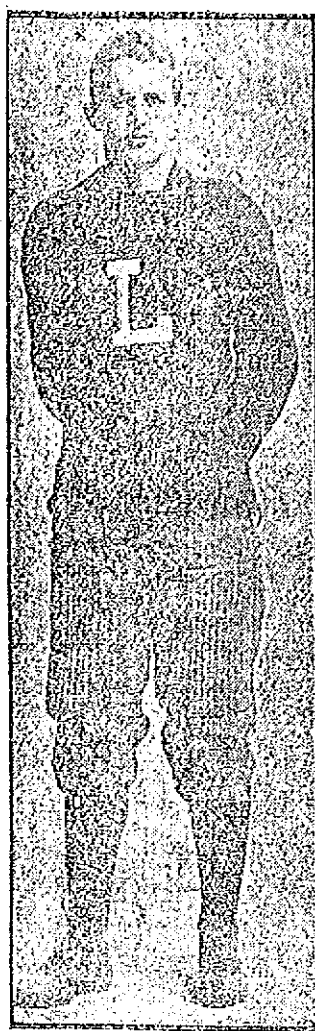

Again, on the strength of this season's record the local boys appear to have it on their opponents. Lowell high has won five games and lost but four while the Lawrence team has won five and lost the same number of contests. The records of the two teams for the season are as follows:

LOWELL HIGH

Lawrence 0, Malden 20.
Lawrence 0, Somerville 12.
Lawrence 0, Manchester 7.
Lawrence 26, Nashua 0.
Lawrence 2, Walpole 0.
Lawrence 31, Leominster 0.
Lawrence 2, Commerce 7.
Lawrence 32, Gloucester 0.
Lawrence 25, Newburyport 7.
Lawrence 131, Opponents 52.

LOWELL HIGH

Lowell 12, Nashua 0.
Lowell 0, Rutland 0.
Lowell 7, Lawrence Academy 0.
Lowell 27, Worcester High 7.
Lowell 0, Malden 2.

BOTH ARE READY

St. John's Prep and Haverhill in Fine Shape for Championship Game

On Thanksgiving day St. John's preparatory college football team will go to Haverhill to play Haverhill high school in its annual game. St. John's team has been undefeated thus far this season and has been scored upon once this year. Haverhill also has been undefeated and as this is the last match of the season for both teams it will also decide the championship of Essex county and of the state.

Another feature of the game will be the officials who will have charge; for these men have been famous on the gridiron. "Tad" Jones, the famous Yale quarterback and present Exeter academy coach will referee. Harry Cahill, a star half-back of Holy Cross and Worcester Academy's coach for the last two years will be umpire. Tom Ready, the old Dartmouth player and present Lehigh university coach, will be head linesman. A special train has been hired by the authorities of St. John's which will convey the students

Athletes and Athletics

The Haverhill High-St. John's Prep game on Thanksgiving Day morning will be some game. On previous records it looks like Haverhill but football comparisons by scores are very deceptive. Both teams have gone through their respective seasons without a defeat and touted as the state champions. Thursday's contest will eliminate one of them. A game with the winner and either Everett or Waltham High would draw an immense crowd.

The captains of the various teams will meet tonight and formally organize the Manufacturers' Bowling League. Charles Farrell has been the organizer of the league and if the boys make a go of it he is the man who should be given the credit for its success.

Lawrence fans are looking forward to a great contest between the High school of that city and Lowell High when they meet Thursday morning in Lawrence. There is certain to be a crowd of at least 5,000 at the game and an even larger attendance may be present.

Lowell is confident of winning the contest but no more so than is Lawrence. The down river boys are basing their hopes for the game on the poor exhibition the local team gave against Haverhill. It is fortunate for Lawrence that Haverhill-Lawrence negotiations were severed this season.

Minds, the great fullback of the Quakers, will be back in the Penn. lineup for the Cornell game on Thanksgiving Day. The Penn camp was in despair over the loss of their line-bucker who was laid up with a sprained shoulder. Minds' shoulder is still weak, but he will start the game at last.

Buck O'Brien, erstwhile twister for the Red Sox, is at home in Brockton and is exercising his arm at the alloys this winter. O'Brien recently struck up a total of 323 while bowling for the K. of C. in his village. If Buck can do as well comparatively in the box next season he will be in fast company again.

Mammoth, the Giant Russian wrestler, is looked upon by many as the only grappler who can consistently challenge Frank Gotch. The Russian is a monster in size and is very fast on his feet for a man of his bulk.

Billy Brooks will box Ping McGee in McGregerville within a short time. Billy is up against a boy who has never been whipped and is looked upon as a wonder in that district. Any youngster of young Brooks' weight will have to show more than we have seen to stand a chance with him. He is a clever kid and packs a punch that will make them all sick. His brother, Joe (Gardner) will box the same night.

The bout between Mike Glover and Jack Britton in New York next Thursday is attracting considerable attention from the fans in the metropolis. Glover says that he will beat Britton and many of the Hub critics say that he has an even chance but it doesn't look that way from here. Britton, in condition, is too tough a scrapper for the South Boston lad.

Yesterday was Charlie Brickley's birthday and his teammates gave him a rousing reception in the rooms of Captain Storer. Brickley leaves Boston tonight for Philadelphia, where he will take in the Cornell-Penn. game on Thursday. The Harvard star will also attend the Army-Navy game at the Polo grounds next Saturday.

The announcement of Johnny Kilbane that he is no longer a featherweight does not cause much stir among the sporting fraternity. Kilbane has not made weight for the past two years for the reason that he couldn't. The featherweight champ, will find the lightweight division a trifle harder to stay up in than the feathers.

Leo Doherty of Lawrence is very anxious to state through this column that Albert Nebes, the local roller skate artist, has nothing on him when it comes to speed or endurance. He would like to skate the local boy, he states, over the five mile route for a purse of $100.

and M. Brennan of the losers made no less than four baskets during eight of his team's 14 points. Hurley caged three baskets for C.

Company M showed themselves superior to their opponents when it came to shooting, winning the range contest by a score of 315 to 250. Kirk showed the best score of 72.

Company C again came to the front when the balls and pins began to fly. The Croppers won the last two strings and took the match by 20 pins. Stuck was high man with 260. The summaries for the various matches are as follows:

QUINTETS BUSY

Alleys Crowded Last Night—The Telephone Team Puts up 1479

All of the local alleys were busy last evening with match games, many of them being league contests. The Fairmounts took the Riversides into camp in their Concord league game on the Y. M. C. I. alleys, winning by the score of 1335 to 1271. Lemire was high man with 291.

Two games were rolled off in the Minor league last night. The Oregonians easily defeated their opponents, the Bohemians, by the score of 1327 to 1279. Downey, with 251, was high man. In the other contest the Dodgers ran away from the Marathons by 53 pins. Welch was high in this game with 275.

At the Y. M. C. I. alleys the Concordians had no difficulty in winning their game with the Stouts. Five, 11 pins separating the two teams when the three

TUNNEL ENGLISH CHANNEL
LONDON, Nov. 25.—The government is taking up the question of the construction of a tunnel across the English channel and Premier Asquith has invited the admiralty, the war office and the board of trade to examine into the question and prepare full reports for submission to the committee on international defence, which will decide as to its practicability.
